

Nixon Budget Is $304.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent to Congress Monday a $304.4 billion budget designed to balance the economy between the pitfalls of persistent inflation and rising unemployment.

As he signed the document at the White House before sending it to the Capitol, Nixon said the budget would "not add to the fires of inflation."

He said also it was antirecessionary in that it is flexible enough to be shifted to cope with economic conditions.

Federal spending in fiscal 1975 would be equivalent to about $1,500 for every man, woman and child in America.

The budget provides for a deficit of $9.4 billion and includes increased spending for defense, energy research, transportation and economic security programs.

"In the face of economic uncertainty," the President told Congress, "my budget recommendations provide for a fiscal policy that would support high employment while restraining inflation."

But if the balancing act fails, whether because of the energy shortage or other reasons, the administration made clear it would prefer higher prices to sharply higher unemployment.

"The President will not tolerate a recession," Deputy Budget Director Frederic Malek told reporters. "If it means busting the budget, he will bust the budget to keep people from losing their jobs."

The administration is prepared to accept a 5.5-per-cent jobless rate, but would resort to contingency spending plans to pump up the economy if unemployment goes much above that.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said that since the budget was prepared the administration already has decided to stimulate the economy by providing an additional 100,000 units of subsidized housing for low-income families, bringing to 300,000 the number of such units planned under the budget.

Other anti-recession measures the administration would take, he said, include a stronger unemployment insurance program, the speeding up of existing spending programs, a flexible monetary policy, and more support for housing.

But a general reduction in taxes, he said, would receive very low priority.

Shultz said the administration would not consider slowdowns caused by the energy shortage or higher oil prices as being factors leading to a recession, even if they brought about recession-like results.

The proposed budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 compares with estimated federal spending in the current fiscal year of $274.7 billion, an increase of $29.8 billion.

The current year's deficit is projected at $4.7 billion.

Nixon said about 90 per cent of the increase in 1975 spending would result from mandatory increases, such as for higher Social Security payments.

Nixon said the budget reflects efforts of his administration to "identify and do well those things which the federal government should do."

There is little of the slashing of existing programs that caused so much controversy in the 1974 budget. For example, spending on sewage-treatment plants, which was cut back in the current budget, would be increased $1 billion to $4 billion in the new year.

But for the second year in a row, there are no new outlays for the Hill-Burton program of hospital construction, although the program will continue with previously authorized funds. Spending will be reduced again for economic development assistance programs.

The biggest increases are for defense and so-called human-resources programs, including health care, Social Security and veterans benefits and education outlays.

The President did not recommend any outlays for his proposed national health-insurance program or welfare reform, but he said specific legislation will be sent to Congress later.

He said it would take several years for the health-insurance program to become fully operational. The new budget provides $26.3 billion for existing health programs.

Defense outlays would increase $6.3 billion to $85.8 billion, which the President's budget report called "the minimum required to insure the combat readiness and modernization of American forces, to provide for the development of future weapons and to offset the erosion of defense purchasing power through pay and price increases."

Nixon said that despite the increase, defense spending as a portion of the national budget has declined from 44 per cent in 1969 to 29 per cent in 1975, with manpower costs requiring a larger share of defense outlays than before because of pay incentives traceable to the switch to a volunteer army.

As the President had announced he would do, he proposed spending $1.5 billion on energy research in 1975 as part of a five-year, $10-billion program to help achieve energy independence for the nation.

A great deal of emphasis is placed in the budget on the President's proposals for a new federal-state relationship, of which his continuing revenue-sharing program is a major part.

But Nixon urged Congress to give new strength to his "New Federalism" by approving programs for education-grants reform, transportation assistance, economic adjustment assistance and his Better Communities Act and Responsive Governments Act.

Truckers Catalog Their Grievances

By DICK HOLMAN

Star Staff Writer

Independent truckers from across Nebraska — and one Californian stranded in the state — appealed to state officials Monday to apply pressure in Washington for a rollback in diesel fuel prices, higher highway speed limits and increased weight limits.

"Truckers don't want violence, just support," said a sign on one of the truckers' cars outside the Statehouse.

Support they got from about 27 state senators and Gov. J. James Exon, who listened to the operators' grievances.

But the governor declared, "There is no magic formula that this Legislature can take that's going to cure the problems in the trucking industry." Exon shifted the blame to the federal government.

"Crippled Today" "This state is crippled today," he said, citing four problems confronting independent truckers:

— "Only the federal government can move" to get relief in fuel prices, he said.

— Even if Nebraska adopted a 65 mph speed limit — thereby losing 10% of its highway funds by ignoring the Nixon administration's recommended 55 mph limit — that wouldn't help truckers when they travel in other states, Exon said.

— Fixing of rates is the responsibility of the Interstate Commerce Commission. "We're helpless in that area."

— Violence "is the only point I think we can do something about here," the governor said, vowing to protect truckers in Nebraska.

Don Tenney of Omaha, who was shot at while driving his rig south of Nebraska City, served as main spokesman for the owner-operators.

"Ready To Shoot" Out of Nebraska, Tenney said, "They're ready to start shooting at us... throw rocks at us." But Nebraska drivers "don't want to cause any trouble."

Tenney detailed rising equipment costs while truckers' returns per mile have been shrinking. Costs have also increased for rig maintenance and replacement, he said.

And while the price per gallon of diesel fuel climbs, running one gear lower to observe a 55 mph speed limit "cuts fuel mileage by half a gallon," Tenney said.

Yet truckers are "operating on the same amount of money today that they were a year ago."

The result is that many truckers are on the brink of financial failure.

Truck Strike's Effects Spread State To State

By The Associated Press

Violence, food shortages and more layoffs were reported Monday in the spreading shutdown of independent truckers. National Guardsmen were on duty in three states to try to stop further violence in the five-day-old protest.

The effects of the strike spread from state to state. Shootings, tire slashings and other violence were reported in more than a dozen areas. Schools in several states closed because they couldn't get gasoline to run the buses or didn't have heating oil; meat packing plants sent their employees home; produce markets said they were running out of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan joined the governors of Ohio and Pennsylvania in calling up the National Guard. Connecticut Gov. Thomas Meskill and New Hampshire Gov. Meldrin Thomson ordered the guard on stand-by alert, while authorities in several other areas provided police escorts for drivers who wanted to keep rolling.

Federal and state officials and truckers' representatives continued meetings in Washington, D.C., to try to end the shutdown that began last Thursday. The key issue is the drivers' demand for a rollback of diesel fuel prices.

The Nixon administration, meanwhile, asked Congress to allow the Interstate Commerce Commission to speed approval of new regulations that would allow drivers to pass increased fuel costs on to the shipping companies they work for.

Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, who called the meetings in the capital,

None of the truckers, however, advocated rate increases as a solution. "If we go for a rate increase, it's going to come right back to you," or fatten carriers' profits, Tenney said.

State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff told the truckers, "Don't back down, but don't resort to violence." Chastising the federal government for its actions affecting independent operators, Carpenter called on legislators to support Exon in helping the haulers.

Meanwhile, Carpenter told them, "You're going to have to take some risks."

Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance suggested the federal government pay truckers a subsidy to stop the shutdown. But Tenney replied that truckers "don't want to be subsidized."

"The answer," said Don Mulder of Davey, "is not raising our rates," rather, he said, "getting fuel back where it was before" — to 33-35 cents a gallon — and upping the speed limit to 60.

Owner-operator Bob Mulder of Adams said his income has dropped $50 a week, and suggested that bankers "are going to have to learn to operate a truck."

Costs Way Up Edwin Real of Greenwood said two years ago a run from Nebraska to Allentown, Pa., cost him $300; now it costs $500. Real also rejected rate increases, saying they couldn't amount to enough to offset rising costs in his total operation.

"The oil companies won't stand" for fuel price rollbacks, he said, calling at least for highway speed limits of 60 and Interstate speed limits of 65, and increased weight hauling limits.

Tenney asked the senators to "set a precedent for people across the country" by supporting the truckers' requests in Washington.

But Exon said he received little assurance from federal officials after talking to the White House twice Monday.

Exon said he recommended a relief period of 30-45 days in which "the President by executive action would waive the 4-cent tax on diesel fuel and gasoline," and delay imposing the 55 mph speed limit.

Tenney implored state officials to find a solution to prevent violence.

"You've done the right thing," Exon told the truckers, "You've come here."

But even though the haulers "have gotten the attention of Washington, D.C.," he said "jawboning is the only real tool we have at work right now."

said 50,000 workers in his state already had been laid off because of the truckers' shutdown and predicted the total could hit 350,000 by the end of the week if the protests continue. More than 9,000 persons in Ohio also were laid off because of the shutdown.

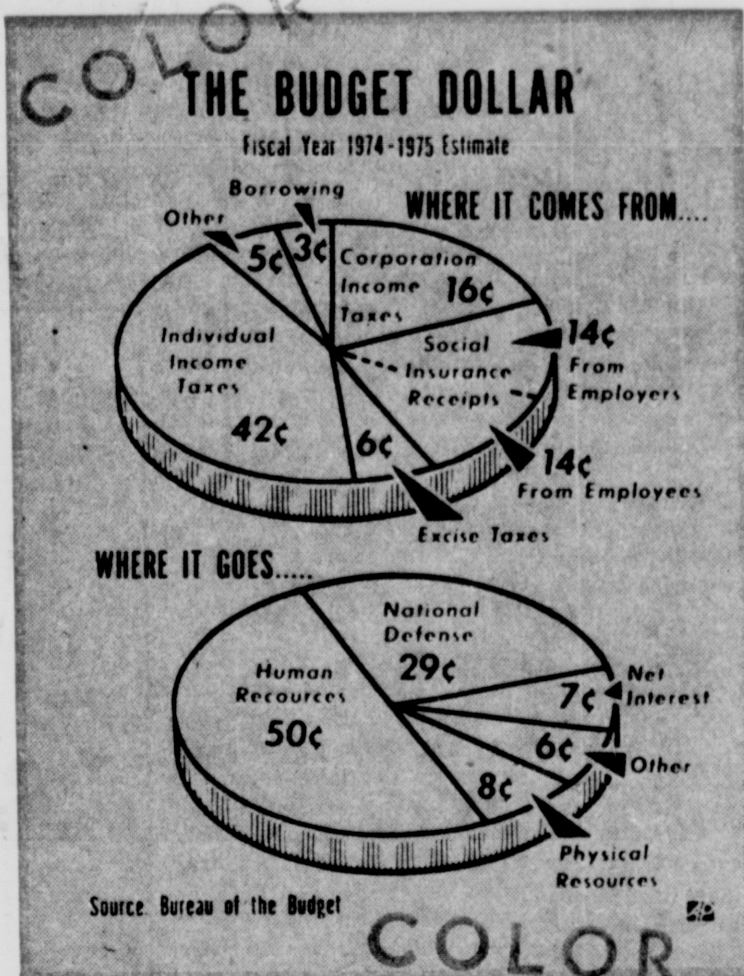

A spokesman for the American Meat Institute said Monday afternoon that slaughter was down sharply because of the truckers' shutdown.

He said 19 per cent fewer cattle were killed Monday than one week ago and 23 per cent fewer than on the comparable day last year. Hog slaughter was down 39 per cent from last week, the spokesman said, and sheep slaughter was down 45 per cent over a week ago.

Richard Lyng, president of the institute, said, "Unless the truck strike is solved immediately, nearly all the meat packing and processing establishments will be shut down by the end of the week."

Florida citrus growers also reported problems. "Fresh fruit shipments of citrus have been affected," said Don Farmer of Florida Citrus Mutual. "There's no question about it."

The protesters are independents, but some company drivers have been staying off the road — in sympathy or fear. Jimmy Hoffa, former president of the Teamsters Union, gave his support to the independents. "They're entitled to make a profit... and they're entitled to a decent wage," said Hoffa. The former union leader also endorsed the independents' protests last December, although current Teamsters leaders condemned the action.

Steven's Creek Plan Receives Initial OK

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

Star Staff Writer

City lawmakers Monday approved in concept a plan to develop land near 70th and Adams, much of which lies within "no man's land" — the Stevens Creek watershed.

The vote was 6 to 1 favoring the action on a complicated issue which saw several members of the council who say they oppose urbanization of Stevens Creek vote in favor of the preliminary plat. Only Councilman John Robinson voted no.

At issue is developer John Hoppe's preliminary plat to develop a 91.5-acre parcel of land in northeast Lincoln, adjacent to the city's mammoth Mahoney Park. Some 65 acres of Hoppe's land are within the watershed, an area in which the city consistently has been prohibiting development.

Hoppe withdrew his original community unit plan for 531 dwellings and resubmitted a standard subdivision plan with a reduced 40 dwelling density.

To Be Replied

The new preliminary plat will be replied with the city, reviewed and submitted prior to or with the final plat plan. The final plat will be forwarded back through the Planning Commission for specific comments and recommendations.

The commission had recommended denial of the community unit plan, mainly on the grounds that the original plan was too dense and did not show enough open space.

And it was because the Planning Commission would get another review of the plan that Councilwoman Sue Bailey said she voted in favor of the concept. She said she believed planning commissioners wanted to comment on some of the larger issues, which they had ignored last time around.

Bailey said she still opposed urbanization of the watershed and said her vote did not indicate she would vote in favor of the final plan.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis reiterated her opposition to development of Stevens Creek as well, but said the tract's proximity to the park constituted a "peculiar situation." Mahoney Park to the east would act as a buffer to further development, she said.

Sewer Said Key

Even though 65 acres of Hoppe's land are located in the watershed, Boosalis stressed that if the area can be hooked up to existing sanitary sewer system at a "reasonable cost," then the development should be given favorable consideration.

Hoppe's engineer, Carl Bodersteiner of John Olsson & Associates, reported that plans call for sanitary sewer hookups to be made into four existing trunk sewer lines — at Seward, Colfax, Benton and Fremont.

Nixon Officially Subpoenaed

Los Angeles (AP) — President Nixon was officially subpoenaed on Monday to testify in the Ellsberg burglary case.

A number of Omaha senators and former Mayor Eugene Leahy appeared to advocate the bills as means of creating new jobs.

'Dire Need'

Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha told the committee, "Omaha has a dire need for technical education. Five out of seven high school graduates don't go to college."

However, committee chairman Jerome Warner questioned the wisdom of specifying in the bill that one of the campuses be located in a new industrial development, the South Omaha Industrial Park.

Mahoney said South Omaha has some special problems, one of which is creating enough jobs for its youth. The school would train the youths in skills, and businesses would hopefully locate in close proximity to the school.

Leahy said the federal government has failed miserably in its job-training efforts.

London — Britain's coal miners voted overwhelmingly to escalate their slowdown into a full strike even as Prime Minister Heath failed in a last-ditch effort to avert economic disaster with a settlement. Leaders of the miners union are to meet Tuesday to consider a strike date, which could be as early as next Sunday. (More on Page 2.)

Chinese Herald Revolution

Hong Kong — An insistent chorus of Chinese broadcasts and editorials is heralding a large-scale renewal of the "great proletarian cultural revolution" under Peking's aging leader Mao Tse-tung. Coming after months of esoteric ideological debates, the mass campaign got under way at Mao's instruction and was being advertised as "a serious class struggle and a thorough-going revolution."

British Coal Miners Overwhelmingly Back Strike

Soviet Official: Much To Learn

Moscow — A High Kremlin official told Soviet industry chiefs that they have much to learn from the West if they want Soviet exports to compete in the world markets. In a candid critique of Moscow's trading practices, deputy minister of foreign trade, Nikola N. Smelyakov, said Soviet industry shies away from the rigors of such competition and insisted that exportation would be a test for Soviet products and their quality.

Gromyko Opens Talks With Nixon

Washington — Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko opened talks with President Nixon and Secretary of State Kissinger, focusing on the Middle East and Soviet-American relations. Officials withheld details of the discussions, but Gromyko, who had just arrived from Havana, said the topics did "definitely not" include Cuba during his initial meeting.

Budget Sent To Congress

Washington — President Nixon sent Congress his $304.4 billion budget for the coming fiscal year, terming it a budget of moderate restraint and fiscal responsibility. (More Stories, Page 3.)

Scandal Reflected In Budget

Washington — The Watergate scandal found itself reflected in several areas of the President's budget requests for fiscal 1975. For instance, the President asked for a substantial increase in the White House payroll. Much of it reportedly to pay for the legal staff handling the complex Watergate litigation.

White House: Tapes Back Nixon

Washington — The White House declared "categorically" that evidence handed to Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski does not support John Dean's testimony implicating President Nixon but rather bears out Nixon's version of events. The statement referred to unspecified "tapes and other evidence." (More on Page 2.)

Relief For Truckers Asked

Washington — The Nixon administration asked Congress to speed relief to financially pressed independent truckers in order to end the work stoppages that threaten economic dislocations in parts of the country. Meantime, talks continued between government officials and the owner-drivers, and both sides voiced optimism that the deadlock over the trucker's demands may be overcome. (More on Page 1.)

Deadlock On Energy Bill
Broken; Rollback Agreed

Washington (UPI) — House-Senate conferees broke a major deadlock on the emergency energy bill Monday by approving an oil price rollback to replace a proposed excess profits tax on the petroleum industry.

The Conference Committee, on a 12-4 vote, adopted an amendment by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that would put a ceiling of $7.09 a barrel on crude oil that has been selling for up to $10.25.

Jackson estimated the provision could push gasoline prices down by about four cents a gallon, and could open the way for Senate approval of the emergency legislation which has been hanging fire since the last session of Congress.

The conferees now will move on to other aspects of the legislation designed to give President Nixon broad powers to deal with the energy shortage, including gasoline rationing if needed.

The action came after energy administrator William E. Simon, moving to discourage "tank hoarding," urged motorists not to buy gasoline until their tanks are able to accommodate at least $3 worth.

Simon also proposed regulations to equalize prices for home heating oil in the Eastern states, where some people have been paying 50% more than their next-door neighbors.

Simon also told the House Ways and Means Committee he is more encouraged than ever that gasoline rationing can be avoided, saying "we're holding out our own" against shortages because of conservation efforts and mild weather.

"At this point I think we've got a little better than a 50-50 chance of beating rationing," Simon said.

Under Jackson's amendment to the energy bill, prices for crude oil and virtually all its products, including gasoline, would be based on the levels last May 15, plus provable increases in costs to retailers since that date.

Simon, commenting in a statement on long lines at service stations around the country, said: "Panic buying isn't helping the situation... Many gasoline stations and trade associations feel there would be enough gasoline if motorists do not use their tanks to hoard gasoline."

Surveys have indicated that 50% or more of drivers burning fuel while waiting in line for more are buying less than five gallons at a time. Some of the "tank toppers" have been getting just a few cents' worth.

The Federal Energy Office has estimated that extra amounts in tanks at a given time represent 5% of the gasoline shortage.

Amoco Oil
Plans Cut
In Gas Cost

CHICAGO (AP) — Amoco Oil Co. announced Monday that it will reduce the price of gasoline by two cents a gallon and will cut the price of heating oil and residual fuels by one cent a gallon.

The price reductions are effective Tuesday.

K.E. Curtis, vice president of marketing, said the cutbacks are in accordance with the federal government's pricing formulas which provide for adjustments in product prices as changes occur in the availability and costs of crude oil and purchased products.

Judge Rules

Against Nixon

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge ruled Monday that President Nixon does not have the authority to permanently halt construction of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal.

U.S. Circuit Judge Harvey M. Johnson said the authority to build, stop or destroy the canal rests with Congress.

Johnson ordered the White House Office of Management and Budget to release immediately $150,000 which Congress appropriated for an environmental impact study of the canal project.

The pullout along the Suez Canal proceeded apace, however, with Israeli invasion troops vacating another 100 square miles of Egyptian territory captured in October fighting west of the Canal.

The withdrawal brought the total area turned back to Egypt to 400 square miles, out of about 1,000 square miles west of the canal seized in the closing battles of the October war. The pullout to lines about 14 miles east of the canal is to be complete in 17 days.

wounded. The Israelis have contested earlier Syrian battle reports as exaggerated.

noon when Israeli artillery shelled Syrian positions near the center of the irregular 40-mile line, then spread all along the front as Syrian guns fired back, the Syrians reported. They claimed destroying six Israeli tanks and 20 artillery batteries.

Arab sources in Beirut, Lebanon, suggested the Syrians may be inflating the Golan skirmishes in an effort to underscore the urgency of the situation and pressure their Arab allies to back Assad's disengagement terms.

Golan Heights Battle Goes On

By The Associated Press

Syria reported its tanks and cannons traded fire with Israeli forces in the Golan Heights for two hours Monday in the 10th consecutive day of clashes along the jagged cease-fire line.

The fighting came as Arab newspapers said Syrian President Hafez Assad was winning his campaign to keep up the oil embargo against the United States until he gets a Golan troop disengagement pact to his liking.

Israeli military spokesmen said the clash was confined to the southeast section of the front and left two Israeli soldiers

White House: Tapes Don't Back Dean

Washington (UPI) — The White House said Monday that tapes and evidence "do not support" John W. Dean's sworn testimony linking President Nixon to the Watergate bugging cover-up.

Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, said what the evidence does support is the truth of the President's repeated statements that he knew nothing of the plot to hush up the scandal until last March 21.

But the White House gave no indication if evidence bolstering Nixon's version would be made public — or whether the President would honor special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski's still outstanding requests for more documents and tapes to aid his investigation.

Miners 81%
For Strike
In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Eighty-one per cent of Britain's coal miners voted for a crippling nationwide strike, and their leader said Monday about the only thing that will head it off is "more cash on the table."

"If the government doesn't take the result of the ballot seriously then all I can say is that the government itself cannot be taken seriously," said Gormley.

The vote put Prime Minister Edward Heath's back to the wall because union leaders now have authority to order the miners out of the coalfields by Sunday.

The 4-1 vote in favor of a strike was the highest ever recorded by the miners' union. The Electoral Reform Society, which monitored the secret ballot, reported 188,393 for and 44,222 against with miners in the militant south Wales area returning 93 per cent in favor.

IRA Blamed
For Explosion
Killing 11 In Bus

BATLEY, England (AP) — Terrorists blew up a busload of British servicemen and their families Monday with a 50-pound bomb that police said ripped the vehicle apart like a can opener, killing 11 persons and wounding 14.

It was the worst terrorist atrocity in Britain since guerrillas blew up a paratroopers' mess hall in Aldershot, killing seven persons, in February 1972.

Police and the army say they suspected the blast was work of the Irish Republican Army, battling the British in Northern Ireland. Authorities launched one of Britain's biggest dragnets in an effort to capture the bombers.

$111 Billion Targeted For Health, Education, Welfare

Washington (UPI) — Of President Nixon's proposed $304.4 billion federal spending plan for fiscal year 1975, the largest share — $111 billion — is targeted for the fast-growing Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Even the estimated 1975 national defense spending runs a distant second.

One explanation is the so-called controllability of the defense budget. For such aid as Medicare health insurance for the aged and welfare for needy families, increases are uncontrollable in the sense that if a person meets either age of income eligibility requirements, federal spending is automatic.

Most of HEW's projected $14.3 billion spending increase above the 1974 amount is attributed to these uncontrollable expenses, some $10.8 billion of it for Medicare and other Social Security related activities.

For the first time, an HEW budget will top $100 billion, and Nixon proposes to move more human needs activities to the department, like food stamp and other nutrition programs administered through the Agriculture Department.

In the budget he sent to Congress one year ago, Nixon set 1974 HEW spending at $93.8 billion and it reached an estimated $96.7 billion. The President estimated at that time that 1975 spending would total $102.7 billion, more than $8 billion shy of his actual fiscal 1975 request.

In its own budget breakdown, HEW said the major spending chunk would be $83.8 billion for old age and survivors benefits, Medicare, and new federal welfare program for aged, blind and disabled persons, and other Social Security Administration activities. Next in line is $14.3 billion for welfare aid and services.

Separate analyses of the budget provide these details on domestic program spending:

Health: Government-wide health spending, including Medicare and Medicaid, will total $26.3 billion in 1975, up 13% over 1974. Spending on National Institutes of Health heart and cancer activities, the nation's two prime killers, is scheduled to increase by $27.9 million and $28.4 million respectively. Two-year support of $125 million is pledged to test pre-paid medical group practices, and funds are promised for the health care of black men who took part in a controversial Public Health Service study of untreated syphilis.

One major initiative is a proposed redirection of federal support for health manpower — away from doctors, nurses and dentists and toward increasing the supply of minority and female professionals, family medicine and primary care specialists, and physician and dental assistants.

Education: Spending on schools is expected to increase from $6.9 billion this year to $7.6 billion in 1975. The administration promised in the budget to submit a supplemental request of $2.2 billion for elementary and high school education "upon enactment of acceptable legislation" consolidating education grants.

The supplemental funds would be used for activities in the school year beginning next fall, an important promise to local school districts which normally do not know when school lets out how much money the federal government will provide the next fall. The education budget also proposes a sharp increase in aid to needy college students and a retargeting of library services and aid to desegregating schools.

Welfare: A 10-year growth of welfare rolls — mostly for families headed by females — is at an end, HEW said. "We anticipate little or no growth in AFDC (aid to families with dependent children) caseload next year. The end in the trend of rapid caseload increases also has the effect of holding down the rate of increase in Medicaid costs."

But food stamp spending, for example, will jump to $3.9 billion, almost a $1 billion increase over 1974 and double the 1972 level. Spending for the new Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program for needy aged, blind and disabled persons is expected to more than double from $2.1 billion this year to $4.8 billion in 1975.

SSI recipients will increase from 3.1 million persons to an estimated 5.6 million persons by June 30, 1975. Although Nixon's budget message called for welfare reform, no new spending was proposed for 1975.

Budget Meets Sharp Criticism

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon's record-shattering budget for fiscal 1975 met sharp criticism and promises of cuts Monday. A priority target was the proposed pay increase for members of Congress, the Executive Branch and the Judiciary.

Minutes after the $304.4 billion budget was made public, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, introduced resolutions which would kill the 7.5% increase, the first pay increase for the government's top employees since 1969.

"We must apply the knife... the first cut should be in the new pay raises," Church said, noting it would mean a $34 million saving.

Rep. James O'Hara, D-Mich., said "at a time when the American wage earners are being restricted to pay increases of not more than 5.5% it is unthinkable for the President to propose increases for high officials that exceed the guidelines being imposed on everyone else."

But assistant Senate Republican leader Robert P. Griffin, noting that the cost of living has increased 25% since 1969, said if Congress "does not have the political courage" to vote itself a pay boost, it should do so for the Executive and Judiciary so they can attract and keep top talent.

The proposed pay increase will be killed if either the Senate or House votes a resolution of disapproval within 30 days.

The demand for cutting the overall budget figure came from Democrats and Republicans, liberal spenders and fiscal conservatives.

Speaker Carl Albert would only comment that the budget was "big." But House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill said, "we must cut the budget below $300 billion and revise the spending priorities to emphasize domestic needs such as education, housing and health."

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said the $85.8 billion request for defense spending was "far too high" and said it could cut by $5-10 billion, partly by cutting back forced overseas.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said he was "somewhat shocked" by the increase in the budget; Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said the budget projects "another smashing deficit"; Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., promised to rally grassroots support for an across-the-board cut; and Rep. John H. Rousselot, R-Calif., said he welcomes Democratic efforts to reduce the budget.

"... Many of us on this side (GOP) of the aisle have been trying for years to do that but members on your side come in with supplementals and roll right over us," Rousselot said.

Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, said the budget message "serves to camouflage the facts... soften what is an alarming message"; Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., called for an immediate $800 million supplemental for a public employment program; Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., called Nixon's health proposals "financial folly"; and Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, said the budget was "a dull, plodding document, without direction, without fire, without promise."

But Rep. Elford A. Cederberg, R-Mich., ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, said the same complaints are aired about the size of the budget every year.

When the talk has "died down, we are going to see how much we can increase it. I predict that we will go down the same course we have over the years."

Nixon's Defense Special Projects Cost $290,418 Fund Abolished

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon's Watergate defense cost $290,418 in public funds over a six-month period and involved lawyers drawn from six government agencies, J. Fred Buzhardt, counsel to the President, said Monday.

From July 1, 1973, to Jan. 9, 1974, salaries of $153,846 were paid the lawyers and clerks. Consultants received $50,111 and administrative expenses totaled $86,461, for a total six-month expense of $290,418 Buzhardt said.

Cleaning Coal Will Get Most Of $461 Million

Washington (AP) — President Nixon's proposed budget for fiscal 1975 includes a $461 million "special allowance" to speed up energy research, much of it devoted to reforming dirty old King Coal into a clean-living citizen of the new environmental society.

Atomic power is due for an even larger portion of research money in the new budget.

Nixon's 1975 budget proposes to spend some $1.6 billion on energy research and development, an increase of $650 million or 69% over fiscal 1974, including the $461 million special allowance.

The Atomic Energy Commission is slated for a $143-million increase in research money to $791 million, supplemented by a still-unspecified amount from the special allowance, to continue development of the breeder reactor and other advances in atomic power.

Budget Covers Space Shuttle, Probe to Mars

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Monday asked Congress to maintain a space program calling for an orbital flight with the Russians next year, unmanned landings on Mars in 1976 and development of the new space shuttle by the end of the decade.

For the fiscal year starting July 1, the President proposed a NASA spending budget of $3.27 billion — up $95 million.

The largest proposed space expenditure was $850 million for design, development and testing of major parts of the space shuttle that will fly like a rocket into orbit and return like a plane to airport landings.

The shuttle, designed for a crew of four and as many as 10 passengers, is expected to become operational in 1980. It will carry automated satellites and a manned laboratory to and from orbit and is expected to enable engineers to repair spacecraft in orbit.

The budget message said the main thrust in the space sciences part of the NASA program will be continued development of two large Viking spacecraft scheduled for launch toward the surface of Mars in 1975. They are to land on Mars in July, 1976, and conduct the first search for life on that planet.

In addition, the budget recommendation calls for funds to support work on two Mariner spacecraft to be sent to Jupiter and Saturn in 1977 and for the start of a new project to explore Venus in 1978.

$85.8 Billion Defense Budget Really Austere, Says Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress Monday for authority to spend more money on defense in fiscal 1975 than in any single year of World War II.

The $85.8-billion spending request for the coming fiscal year tops 1945, when the $79.9 billion spent was the largest ever for America's non-nuclear armed forces.

Despite the record high, Nixon said in his 1975 budget proposal that unchecked inflation, the energy crisis and the rising costs of the volunteer army make the new budget an austere one. Current dollars, greatly inflated from 1945 dollars, support a 2-million-man military, while the war-year force numbered about 12 million men.

Nixon predicted the fiscal 1976 military budget will rise to about $92.6 billion.

Many of the new spending requests for weapons and strategic force development were necessitated by the Soviet Union's apparent determination to commit virtually unlimited resources to its military forces, defense officials say. While the currently stalled Strategic Arms Limitation Talks might end with a mutual reduction of weaponry, Nixon's budget proposal notes, "If negotiations failed and the Soviet Union seeks military advantage, the United States must be prepared to increase its forces quickly and effectively."

The new budget proposal marks a $6.3-billion increase over estimated spending for fiscal 1974 of $79.5 billion. Despite that, officials say, inflation makes it proportionately an even smaller defense budget when compared with other government operations or other parts of the U.S. economy.

In discussing the proposal, Pentagon budget officers, disclosed that as a result of the Middle East War in October and an increased interest by the Soviet Union in the Indian Ocean, the Navy will retain the carrier Oriskany in its fleet. The aging vessel had been scheduled for retirement when a new carrier called the Nimitz joins the fleet sometime this year.

Budget officers also said they would ask for authority to build two instead of one Trident submarine in the next fiscal year, a speedup sure to draw fire on Capitol Hill.

Another budget item likely to draw congressional attention is a more than doubling from $109 million to $248 million for research on more accurate missile warheads. There is fear among the critics of Defense Secretary Schlesinger's nuclear arms planning that the Soviet Union will believe the United States is developing the ability to knock out Russia's own land-based intercontinental missile force.

In the past, U.S. nuclear policy planning assumed the United States would never strike first. Schlesinger has said there is no change in that, though he wants greater versatility in targeting a variety of Soviet military and industrial sites.

Among the more significant fiscal 1975 defense proposals: —$7.5 billion for strategic weaponry including research on larger warheads for intercontinental ballistic missiles. —Development of an idea rejected under former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, namely intercontinental missiles perched on railroad cars and thus hard to detect because of their mobility. —Development of a lightweight fighter plane for both the Air Force and the Navy to replace the F4 and F15 just now coming into use for both services. Both the F4 and F15 are rated as top-notch matches for any Soviet fighters but increasingly expensive to produce.

—The reduction of the National Guard and military reserves by 59,000 men. More cuts are likely later in 1974 or in 1975.

—The addition of a 4,500-man infantry brigade to the 13 Army divisions already spread around the world. There are plans for two more brigades later.

The budget message notes that from 1968 to 1975, the size of U.S. military forces will drop from 3.5 million to 2.1 million men, but the cost of paying those soldiers rises from $19 billion to $24 billion.

About $3.5 billion is listed as direct costs of recruiting and maintaining the all-volunteer force in effect for the past year.

Money is requested for restoring sharply depleted stocks of artillery, tanks, anti tank missiles and other ammunition supplied to Israel in a 2-month-long airlift during the fighting.

As an indication of Schlesinger's faith in long-range cargo planes such as the C141 and C5, the proposal requests money to lengthen the range of some cargo craft and to increase the number of crews for those planes.

Schlesinger is known to believe that many ships and planes already in the U.S. arsenal were allowed to deteriorate during the years of the Vietnam war. So a request is made for $1.4 billion in the supplemental proposal for increased readiness.

by KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

(Note: The Star's editor, William O. Dobler, is out of town on business. Today's column is by news analyst Kevin P. Phillips.)

WASHINGTON — Christmas is a great season for giving board games. In our house, we received a game about presidents, and I just got around to playing it.

Answer the question by naming the right president. Then move your token. Ho-hum. After a while, the insipidity of the questions — e. g., who was the first president to ride a train to the White House? — persuaded me to take pencil in hand and design a similar, yet crucially different game called "Dirty Presidents." Some of the questions are listed below. At this point, the cynical reader will doubtless beavoring the array of "dirty firsts" scored by the Nixon administration, wherein lies the surprise moral of this game. Play along, please, without looking at the answers at the end of the column.

- 1) Who was the first president to have his White House chief of staff indicted and tried for criminal offenses?
- 2) Who was the first president to send a U.S. Navy destroyer hundreds of miles merely to pick up his dog?
- 3) Who was the first president to decline full compliance with a subpoena?
- 4) Who was the first president to increase his family's net wealth from a few thousand dollars to many million during a period of years when he was never off the public payroll?
- 5) Who was the first president to agree to deliberate non-atomic firebombing of civilians?
- 6) Who was the first president to see his appointments secretary sent to jail?
- 7) Who was the first president to help arrange for a close relative to finagle a $200,000 loan made while the chief executive was in office?
- 8) Who was the first president whose attorney general was later indicted?
- 9) Who was the first president to have been involved previously in a court suit charging him with gaining federal office through fraud?

Surprise, surprise. Not one answer is "Richard Nixon." The first White House chief of staff indicted was Lyndon Johnson's chief secretary, Orville Babcock. The first White House appointments secretary to go to jail was Matthew Connelly, who served in that capacity for Harry S. Truman. And the first attorney general indicted was Harry Daugherty. Warren G. Harding's 1920 campaign manager and fellow Ohioan.

Franklin D. Roosevelt detached a destroyer to pick up his dog, Fala, in Alaska. FDR also helped one of his sons evade the burden of a major loan, and Roosevelt went along with World War II plans for firebombing Dresden.

C. P. Snow has quoted Britain's wartime science adviser, Lord Cherwell, as saying that the Allies decided to firebomb working-class German neighborhoods because they wouldn't kill and terrorize as many civilians by bombing lower-density, middle-class districts.

Thomas Jefferson was the first president who declined full compliance with a subpoena. Lyndon Johnson is the man who parlayed his family's few thousand dollars into many millions without ever leaving government service, and the newspapers never spread his personal finances all over Page One day after day. Johnson was also the first president previously dragged into court by charges of election fraud (opponents claim he won the 1948 Texas Senate primary by ballot-box stuffing), and good old LBJ was also the first president to nominate the lawyer in his election fraud case — Abe Fortas — to be chief justice of the United States.

Those who have played my game will realize that President Nixon has not racked up all that many great historic "dirty firsts." Unfortunately, it would be better if he hadn't finished second in so many categories.

States Bring Reform With Financial Disclosure Laws

WASHINGTON — One of the foremost lessons of Watergate, nearly everyone would agree, is that laws governing campaign spending and financial disclosure are in need of drastic reform. Congress seems reluctant to accept this reasoning, but not the state legislatures.

This year, 42 state legislatures will meet in some form of regular session, and at least two in special session. And "virtually every one of them," a council spokesman told Editorial Research Reports, will consider campaign reform and related issues. Legislatures that dealt with the issue in 1973 will take a second look at their handiwork this time around.

Congress, meanwhile, has been mired in bickering. Last July 30, barely a month after the nation heard how President Nixon's 1972 re-election committee had helped to finance the Watergate burglary, the Senate approved the first comprehensive campaign reform act in 48 years. The bill placed limits on expenditures and contributions in campaigns for federal office, lifted restrictions on broadcast appearances, and created a new elections commission.

When the bill reached the House, it was left to twist slowly, slowly in the wind. Critics accused Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio), chairman of the House Administration Committee, of stalling tactics. For his part, Hays promised to report out a version of the bill by February, 1974.

In late November, 1973, the Senate tried another approach. It attached an amendment calling for public financing of election campaigns to a bill extending the federal debt ceiling. But the House refused to accept the measure, and when it returned to the Senate, a filibuster killed the amendment.

At the state level, the campaign-reform movement predates Watergate. An initiative approved by voters in Washington state in November, 1972 opened campaign funding, the personal finances of public officials, and lobbying activities to public view. Strong enforcement powers were given to an independent commission. Colorado voters took similar action.

Alabama's new code of ethics, enacted in 1973 with Gov. George Wallace's strong support, may be the most comprehensive in the nation. It covers certain state officials, state employees, members of the press, and persons having business dealings with the government, and requires them to disclose their economic interests and the incomes and occupations of their immediate families. In addition, the code prohibits cabinet members and gubernatorial appointees from owning any interest in any enterprise that does business with the state or from receiving income from any other governmental agency.

Campaign reform and financial disclosure make for smart politics these days.

Strike To Bring Results?

Getting no relief after earlier demonstrations and protests, many of the nation's independent truckers have gone out on strike — a sure-fire method of getting attention. Even many of those truckers who may not think the strike is a good thing are observing it because they don't want trouble. Violence has occurred throughout the nation and likely will continue as the strike spreads.

The truckers' strike, if it continues, would tie up the nation and unless action is taken on the truckers' demands ranging from a fuel price rollback to higher speed limits, the nation is, as Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania said, heading toward an economic calamity.

A strike is a most effective way of getting one's point across, but to continue it now with violence on the upswing and the potential the strike has for crippling an already-sick economy is irresponsible and thick-headed.

We agree with such people as Nebraska's Gov. Exon, who is urging truckers to stay on the job while pressing through "legitimate channels" to air their grievances, and Gov. Shapp, who has asked that the independent truckers at least postpone a strike for 45 days, a period during which he hopes the truckers' difficulties will be resolved. A moratorium on the strike would be constructive and would show good faith.

The situation also illustrates irresponsible leadership at the federal level. Neither the President nor the Congress is coming to grips with the problem. We should not be at the point where governors have to call out the National Guard to restore or preserve order and where truckers who want to stay on the road have to dodge bullets. The President should quit making wild, impressive promises about there being no recession or no gas rationing this year and get to work on the conditions which have prompted the violence and the strike. The economy shouldn't have to dissolve and the life of the nation come to a grinding halt before some action is taken.

The Democrats' Rebuttal

People got a more accurate picture of the state of the union if they listened to Senate Majority leader Mike Mansfield last Friday in the Democrats' rebuttal to President Nixon's report to Congress two days earlier.

Mansfield's presentation was not strictly partisan and it was not an attack on the President. The Montana senator outlined legislative goals, defended the record of Congress and said that the investigations of the 1972 campaign scandals and related activities should be continued to their logical ends no matter how long it takes. The speech was closer to reality than was the President's and it didn't seek to gloss over the problems of the country.

Especially important was Mansfield's reaction to Nixon's statement of Wednesday night that "one year of Watergate is enough." The Senate majority leader said "Whether it be months or years, there are no judicial shortcuts." Because of Watergate and what it represents, Mansfield said, the nation has a solemn and urgent obligation to clean up the election and campaign funding systems.

The President should have said something along that line to the Congress and nation the other night, rather than reminding people how tired they are of the Watergate investigation. But apparently the President has learned nothing from the scandals. Last year he talked about the need for a legislative remedy for the campaign abuses, but it looks as if his enthusiasm has waned.

TOM WICKER

The Shadows Of Unreality

NEW YORK — Sen. Mike Mansfield gave the right response to Richard Nixon's plaintive remark that "one year of Watergate is enough." As a matter of fact, one year of Watergate is too many; but Mansfield implicitly asked, whose responsibility is that?

"As for the crimes of Watergate — and there were crimes," the senator said, "they cannot be put to rest by Congress. Nor can any words of the President or from me mitigate them." The drama set in motion by Nixon's own men, in what they surely thought was his service, in which his own part remains shadowy, can only be played out — not dropped or retracted or made innocuous.

Yet, Nixon and those around him seem almost willfully to refuse to understand that the Watergate tide cannot be shut off, as with a faucet, or made to turn by the wave of someone's hand. It was apparent months ago, for example, that the indictments, trials, and convictions (due to guilty pleas) and appeals even then certain to take place would keep Watergate in the headlines for the rest of Nixon's term, should he serve it out; yet, he kept talking of "getting it behind us," as if "it" were a decision to be made or one more financial report to be issued.

This attitude persists, as Nixon himself demonstrated in the State of Union speech. And here is Ronald Ziegler, the master spokesman of ineptitude, once again commanding the waves to recede: "It is a fact that we are not going to proceed day in and day out through 1974 answering questions about the Watergate affair." If that is a fact, then the White House press office might as well close its door; more to the point, Ziegler will only succeed once again in making Nixon look secretive, with something to be secretive about.

But of course it is not a fact. Circumstances will not permit the White House simply to abolish Watergate, any more than circumstances will much longer permit Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania to insist without supporting facts that he has seen evidence to prove John W. Dean 3d a liar and Nixon innocent. Even Ziegler concedes that it is unlikely that Scott has seen evidence not available to the special prosecutor's office, as Scott has suggested; and if such evidence exists why does the special prosecutor not have it? For what purpose is Nixon withholding evidence that would clear him, prove Dean a perjurer, and affect several other defendants at whose trials Dean is to testify?

This is unreality either way. If the Scott evidence exists, Nixon must believe he does not really need to clear himself; if it does not exist, either he is playing games with the public, and either way the truth is bound to emerge, to the further collapse of everyone's credibility.

Unreality appears to have affected even the normally sensible Charles S. Rhyne, attorney for Rose Mary Woods. He now says the experts who found five erasures in an important White House tape were not experts at all and did not know what they were doing. Yet, these men were jointly chosen by Judge John J. Sirica and White House attorneys, none of whom has questioned their findings (nor has any other expert).

Rhyne may well have reason to believe that Nixon's lawyers are ready to throw Miss Woods to the wolves, by blaming the erasures on her. But is his defense really to be that the erasures were not made at all? It would be as easy to believe that they were the result of the "sinister force" General Haig once felt hovering in the White House gloom.

But the greatest unreality is another set forth by Nixon in his State of the Union message — the curious notion that he can decide for himself the extent to which he may or may not respond to subpoenas from the House Judiciary Committee in its formal constitutional inquiry into his possible impeachment. The ever-helpful Scott has now amplified this notion by stating that Nixon will provide the committee only "relevant" information and that his lawyers will

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband and I have had a disagreement about the coffee pot and dish detergent ever since we've been married, four years. He says dish detergent is soap and you can't rinse it all off. Therefore the coffee will have soap in it. He just doesn't believe there is any reason to wash a coffee pot. They've had the coffee pot at the shop for two years and it's never been washed. I say it sounds dirty. Dish detergent is not soap, and especially after the pot has been thoroughly rinsed it should make a better pot of coffee. Our new coffee pot is not to be put down in dish water. There are directions other than rinsing it out or, if coffee stain gets in it, dissolve it with vinegar. Or, if the stain is bad, to use a coffee pot stain cleanser.

—Mrs. J. B. H.

That pot in the shop must be in great shape by this time — stains, including oil, build up in the pot, and I'm pretty sure that a gourmet coffee-drinker would prefer a clean pot. It only makes sense to clean it occasionally.

As to detergents, they are not soap. They are chemicals of a phosphate-silicate type, and the purpose is to lower surface tension — so that things (meaning dirt) don't cling as tightly.

Soap will cling to a surface and cause streaks even after quite thorough rinsing. Detergents don't.

So far as that is concerned, small amounts of detergent are not harmful if swallowed, but they rinse away so easily that there is scant chance of getting even a little inside you.

I suppose your pot at home is an electric percolator, which shouldn't be immersed in water. But perking a potful of plain water and vinegar makes sense. Or plain water and a little detergent, after which just rinse it out.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it the truth that small babies only smile when they have gas? Or is this just an "old wives' tale"? My baby sister is 3 1/2 weeks old and very alert for her age. She smiles so cute that it's an ego-buster to have somebody say, "Oh, it's only gas," when you thought it was you she was smiling at.

—N.C.

Old wives' tale. And don't let the killjoys bother you. I've been hearing that old wheeze for decades and don't believe there's an ounce of truth in it.

Of course you have to distinguish between a smile and grimace, and a baby may make distressed faces if he has a bubble of gas bothering him. But a smile is a smile, and it comes as naturally as tears.

A small baby has only about four expressions: smiles, crying, a pout, and a screwing up of the face when he feels fussy.

So take the smiles at face value.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have pain and swelling in my foot and have been told it could be a neuroma tumor. I want to know if this is a malignant tumor and also if surgery is necessary.

—Mrs. G.M.S.

Such tumors ordinarily are NOT malignant — but surgery is usually necessary if you want to get rid of the pain.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 10 years old and have a mole on my left hip. It keeps getting bigger. Do you think it could be cancerous? Please put this in the paper because there are probably other people with the same problem. I am very worried about this.

—J.K.

At your age cancer is quite rare although not impossible. Since the mole is getting bigger, it definitely should be examined by a physician and probably removed to prevent future risk.

Any mole that bleeds, changes sizes or changes shape should be examined because those may be signs of coming trouble. I wish people more than 10 years old would pay attention to this.

Because of the tremendous volume of mail received daily, Dr. Thosteson regrets that he cannot answer individual letters, but whenever possible he uses readers' question in his column. Copyright 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name and may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Correcting Errors

Lincoln, Neb.

This is not intended to be a dissertation on power; rather, a few words which all of us might well heed.

The pages of history are full of the names of men who found themselves placed in positions of power. Some have used the power wisely and discreetly while with others, it has become an obsession, thereby placing themselves above their fellowmen and their welfare. In the latter, the innocent and oppressed always suffered.

We here in our country live under a government of our own choosing, delegating powers of making and enforcing laws to those elected to do so.

All of us, being human, are sometimes wrong and make mistakes. Therefore, let us use tolerance and compassion in judging our fellowmen, knowing full well the last judgment and atonement for our sins rest in the hands of our Maker and not society. In view of some recent decisions, this is a very comforting thought.

Let us seek more the power from above of prayer and guidance that we may help our fellowmen and better our own lives. I for one realize if I could use my errors in judgment and mistakes for stepping-stones, they would probably reach to the stars.

Perhaps this is why man, the highest intelligence on this planet, has been granted this power and the ability to reason, that he may live in harmony with other peoples on this earth.

It is said: "The wisest of men make mistakes but strive to correct them. Only fools are blind to their errors in judgment and fail to acknowledge them."

Rockefeller Speech

Sargent, Neb.

It has come to my attention that Nelson Rockefeller will be the speaker at the Nebraska Republican Founders Day banquet on April 16. I hope he will explain to the conservative Republicans of Nebraska how he defeated Barry Goldwater in 1964 so that they may plan their campaign strategy for 1976.

If not that, then maybe he will go into detail about the C.F.R., C.E.D., I.P.R., A.D.A., Atlantic Union, the United Nations and other socialistic organizations that he and his family put so much time and money into, but I doubt it. Maybe he will tell them how little income tax he has paid each of the past 10 years!

Or he might mention America's first foreign-born president, Henry Kissinger. Henry is also a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and a proponent of world government. The Wall Street Journal said that Kissinger has been an intimate advisor of New York Governor Rockefeller since the 1950's and that Kissinger was "really bitter" at Nixon's nomination and felt he was incompetent in foreign affairs.

Alternatives

Lincoln, Neb.

I can understand the many objections to abortion on demand but I cannot agree with them.

I don't think the Catholics can tell me what I can or cannot do with my body merely because it is against their religion. It is not against mine and I am not trying to impose my beliefs or morals on them. They do not have to have abortions but they should not deprive others of the right.

I personally would not want an abortion. It would be my last possible option, but I want the option there if I need it. I could not bring a child into the world when I could not care for it and love it properly.

Many abortions are among young girls who have no other course to take and/or have been abandoned by the father of the child.

And furthermore, I cannot believe any decent Christian would make a rape victim who was impregnated bear a child fathered by someone she didn't even know and for whom she harbored an intense hatred.

If we want to do away with abortion on demand, then let's get some viable alternatives such as better birth control, with easier access to it. Or let's encourage vasectomies and hysterectomies and let's enact a workable anti-RAPCAUER

Adams, Neb.

How wonderful that Terry Carpenter should introduce a bill, LB 617, to legalize — for a fee — that is, to license and tax purveyors of obscene material. I am surprised that he hasn't added a rider or another bill legalizing murder, bank robbery, rape and anything else that people want to do, since he says about the obscenity bill: "I don't think the people want it stopped," and asked: "Who are you to say that someone shouldn't be stimulated if he wants to be?"

Criminals don't want their work stopped, so why not license them to continue? It might bring in a lot of revenue, which is what his proposed bill has in mind. I think.

I am surprised that a man of his caliber should propose anything as degenerating as this bill. Maybe I am just old-fashioned!

Right To Be Loved

Lincoln, Neb.

All of the recent letters concerning abortion have had valid points to make, and any woman who contemplates abortion should have studied all sides of the issue before reaching the decision best for her. That is as it should be.

Here is another point to be considered: The destruction of a life unaware, by abortion, may be preferable to the destruction of the soul of a child all too aware of being unloved and rejected by parents who did not want a baby.

Every child born should have the right to be welcomed with joy and love.

Getting Serious

Kearney, Neb.

After listening on TV to an editorial criticism of Big Brother (Uncle Sam) for the gasoline shortage and approval of big oil combines for the present squeeze, I thought, "Charlie Bryan, where are you?"

I recalled his attempt to hold price levels down by means of municipal stations. It reminded me of a couple, the husband, a hard-core Republican, and the wife, a liberal Democrat, who so often wound up at the muni station to purchase their gas when out for a joy-ride. The husband gave his wife the money to pay for their purchase and she kept the savings, remarking that he wouldn't want it, anyway, because they weren't his kind of people.

I wonder why Uncle Sam doesn't get serious about this price-gouging, develop some new methods of processing, start up some stations, control supplies and probably pay off a good hunk of the national debt while relieving the crisis.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Pleasant Life Found In Retirement Hotel

By ROBERT PETERSON

When folks ask this column where the best bargains in retirement housing can be found, we generally suggest mobile homes and retirement hotels.

Most people know about the economies to be found in mobile homes, but many are unaware of the low cost and companionable living to be found at various retirement hotels. These are usually fine old hostels built early in this century. They are still sturdy and substantial but, having ceased to be popular and fashionable, have had to close their doors as deluxe hotels.

Rather than let these fine old structures sit idle, imaginative businessmen have taken them over in many areas and turned them into residential hotels offering retired men and women their rooms, meals, and assorted services at rates under $10 daily.

The Bon Air Retirement Hotel in Augusta, Ga., is a splendid example. Built in 1921 on a centrally located, 11-acre site, this handsome, sprawling 300-room hotel of fireproof construction was built like a palace with marble floors and gracious appointments. It catered to the vacationing rich and served as the center of fashionable resort life in Georgia for a score of years. When World War II came, the wealthy clientele stopped coming and following the war the Bon Air was never able to make it financially as a luxury hotel.

That's when energetic J. C. Bible came along. A successful, well-to-do engineer and businessman in his 40s, Bible saw the empty Bon Air and its possibilities as a haven for older people. So a dozen years ago he bought the hotel and turned it into a retirement club. Following major repairs, renovations and redecoration, the Bon Air was soon home-sweet-home to several hundred older men and women.

What does it cost to live there? Rates start at $225 monthly per person, based on two to a room. Single rooms are a bit more. This includes three meals a day, maid service, linens, parties, weekly movies and on-the-premises church services. There's a big swimming pool and a free bus to take guests downtown shopping.

"We don't have an infirmary," Bible told me, "but we offer a practical nursing service and there are four hospitals nearby. Because of the easy proximity, doctors at the hospital will make calls at the hotel when necessary."

What makes the Bon Air different from some retirement hotels is its emphasis on activities. "I feel very strongly," says Bible, "that in addition to a nice room and good food you've got to provide older people with special events, arts, crafts, and stimulating things to do if they're to remain healthy and contented. We try to keep the atmosphere humming, and every day there's something on the schedule to which guests can look forward."

Schmit: Fuel Shortage 'Contrived'

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, chairman of the Legislature's Committee on Agriculture and the Environment, told the Nebraska Agribusiness Club that there would be "a few gas wars" someplace in the United States within six months.

"There may be some shortages but much of the current fuel situation is contrived. There is so much propane in my home county (Butler County) that there isn't room to store any more but the price is up 400% from last year. It used to cost $100 to heat my home but this year it will be nearly $1,500," he said.

Schmit said that "the greatest incentive a person could have to set his thermostat lower is 35¢ propane."

Opposed to 55 MPH
The senator also indicated that he was opposed to the 55 mile an hour speed limit for cars or trucks. "If you set the limit at 55 miles an hour and make it mandatory it is the equivalent of taking 20% of the trucks off the road," he said.

Schmit told the agribusinessmen that he is sometimes accused of beating his own drum, but added, "If I learned anything in the Legislature it is that your drum don't get thumped much unless you do it yourself."

Schmit did a considerable amount of thumping of his own personal drum and the drum of the Committee on Agriculture and the Environment.

"It was hearings by our committee that increased the price of beef on the farm from 37¢ to nearly 50¢ a pound," he said.

Schmit also credited the committee with improving the price of milk even more. "The discounts for damaged milk dropped from 60¢ to 6¢. We had one farmer in who contracted his milk for $4 but got only 40¢ because of dockage before the hearings. The percentage of dockage was greatly reduced immediately after the hearing," he said.

Curtis: Propane Cost Is 'Freak Situation'

Washington (AP) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis called recent increases in the cost of propane gas a "freak situation" that he said "has hit hardest at the pocketbooks of thousands of rural Americans who rely on propane as a home heating fuel and farmers who rely on it to fuel irrigation pumps."

Thone Suggests National Repeal Of Winter DST

Washington (AP) — Unless there is solid evidence that wintertime Daylight Saving Time is saving energy, "the nation should abandon it at once," says Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb.

"I am more convinced than ever that wintertime Daylight Saving Time causes more problems than it solves," he observed in his weekly news letter.

He recalled that he was one of 88 House members — out of 435 — who voted against "this hastily conceived and considered legislation" when enacted in December.

Sidney City Manager Submits Resignation

SIDNEY, Neb. (AP) — City Manager Ed Prince Monday submitted his resignation to the Sidney City Council.

Prince, citing personal reasons as well as a petition drive begun last week to abolish the city manager form of government, said he will leave office March 15 to take a position with a regional planning body in his home state of Georgia.

He said one of the determining factors was the distance between Sidney and an acceptable university at which his wife could continue her graduate education.

Of the petition drive, he said a similar attempt was made in Marietta, Ga., during his tenure there as assistant city manager before he came to Sidney in 1972.

"It was of the most unpleasant experiences in my life and I have no wish to repeat it," he said in his letter to the council.

Schmit admitted that some of the price change could have been a coincidence, but said, "I might as well take the credit because if it had gone the other way I would have gotten the blame."

Schmit said he was still a Nixon supporter but scored the national administration for what he called a lack of leadership.

"What is really needed is a thorough examination of the oil companies' finances. You and I don't know much about oil financing but we had better learn. The increased price in gasoline since Jan. 1 is costing Nebraska more than the entire general fund will," he said.

Schmit said one reason the investigations to date have not been effective was the large contributions made to both political parties by oil companies.

Schmit praised the press for its cooperation with his committee in reporting the results of the hearings.

'Tremendous Difference'
"A good press that tells the story of this kind of a hearing can make a tremendous difference on the economy of the state," he said.

Schmit said he sympathized with truckers' problems, which he blamed on governmental meddling with private enterprise.

"You can't expect them to run their trucks and lose money. We have got to get this problem solved or meat will start backing up in the country. It is already happening," he said.

Schmit also predicted that he would have very little trouble getting meat industry leaders to testify at his committee hearings. "We have two bills, one which will ban grade and yield buying and one that sets tight guidelines for livestock buying that will bring them in eager to testify," he predicted.

Across Nebraska Dawson-Verdon Schools Closed By Flu

Dawson (AP) — Monday's classes at the Dawson-Verdon consolidated schools were cancelled because of flu. The elementary school is at Verdon and the high school at Dawson.

Dinner For Ford May Attract Near 600

Omaha (AP) — About 600 persons are expected at the $100-a-plate dinner for Vice President Gerald Ford Feb. 15 at the Omaha Hilton. The estimate was made by Richard Herman, Republican national committeeman, who also said advertising executive Charles D. Peebler Jr. will be chairman for the dinner.

Minority Scholar Series Set For Chadron

Chadron (UPI) — Four nationally known personalities from minority races will speak on the Chadron State College campus here during February and March as part of a minority scholar series sponsored by the Nebraska Educational Television Council on Higher Education. They include Rafer Johnson, the 1960 Olympic Decathlon champion who will be here Feb. 24-25. The series will be started by Kahn-Tineta Horn, a Canadian who is a member of the Iroquois tribe. She will be on campus Feb. 11-12. During March, Julian Nava, a Chicano who is a professor at Stanford University, and LaDonna Harris will be on campus here. Mrs. Harris is a full-blooded Cherokee and the wife of U.S. Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla.

Mishap Fatal To Youth

Lincoln Star Special
Central City — A rural Central City youth, Byron Chapman, 15, lost his life late Sunday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding was hit by a Union Pacific train.

Merrick County Sheriff Dan Schneiderheinz said the accident occurred at a rail crossing on a county road about three miles east of Central City.

The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Chapman. The family moved to the Central City area about two months ago from Plattsmouth.

Funeral services are scheduled Wednesday.

Rib tickler.
No bones about it, coffee glazed ribs 'n' kraut is a great winter classic. Especially when served with a pot o' beans to satisfy cold weather appetites.

(Makes 8 servings) 5-6 lbs. spareribs in serving pieces, 1 c. strong coffee, 1/2 c. ea. light molasses and cider vinegar, 1/4 c. prepared mustard, 1 T. Worcestershire sauce, few drops hot pepper sauce. Arrange ribs 1 layer deep on bed of Frank's Quality Kraut. Heat and stir remaining ingredients 'til blended. Bake uncovered, 350°, 2 1/2 hrs., basting frequently. FRANK'S. For a real ribbing. Look for the cabbage on the can. Jars and kraut juice, too.

Nelson Rockefeller

Rockefeller To Address Republicans

Former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, often mentioned aspirant for the presidency in 1976, will address the 1974 Republican Founders' Day April 6, at Pershing Auditorium state GOP officials announced Monday.

Nebraska Republican party senior president Walter Witthoff of Fremont, citing a poll reflecting Rockefeller high among presidential hopefuls, said, "We could, therefore, be hearing the next President of the United States at the Founders' Day luncheon."

Asked if the Republicans intend to use the celebration featuring Rockefeller to save party wounds salted by Watergate and associated national political ills, Witthoff said, "I have a feeling it's going to hurt everyone in political office" and will "not be confined to the Republicans."

Preceding Rockefeller's talk, the Nebraska congressional delegation and Republican state officials will hold informal meetings, Witthoff said.

The program will begin April 5, with a GOP Fellowship at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel. A morning Founders' Day meeting April 6 will precede Rockefeller's noon address.

Exon Backs Nursing Accord

By The Associated Press
Gov. J. James Exon has gone along with a general agreement reportedly reached among University of Nebraska, state college and community college interests on how nursing education programs should be provided in the state.

Exon sent a letter to members of the appropriations committee Monday, asking them to delete from his budget bill a prohibition against a four-year nursing program at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"No additional funding is needed or requested over my recommendations," he wrote.

"This action is suggested because since my budget message and bill, the various educational boards have reached a unanimous compromise that both a two and four year nursing program be established, starting next semester, at UN-L which is a duplicate of present facilities at the medical college in Omaha."

NU regents and the board of trustees of state colleges endorsed the concept at separate meetings Saturday.

The plan calls for a four year program at Kearney State College, and two-year programs at community colleges. But Exon advised proceeding "with caution...until we have more experience as to needs both present and future. This seems to be the consensus of the compromise reached by the various educational boards."

Kearney Man Is Killed

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP) — A truck-train accident claimed the life of a rural Kearney man Monday.

Authorities said Robert Richter, 48, was killed when the farm truck he was driving collided with a 10-unit train on a Union Pacific spur train on highway 10 northwest of here.

His death brought Nebraska's 1974 traffic fatality count to 20, compared with 39 on Feb. 5 of last year.

TV, Telephone Unite In 'Grand Generation'

COLLECTOR . . . and his wagon wheels is filmed for the "Grand Generation."

By NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

In the midst of an interview the telephone rang and the electronic recording device clicked into operation.

"This is Mrs. Wright (not real name) from Lincoln, and I would like to have someone call me at your convenience," says the caller, leaving her name and telephone number.

"I really enjoy the 'Grand Generation; you're doing a good job." And the caller hung up.

"Really, that wasn't staged. That's the second call we've gotten this morning," said "Grand Generation" Producer Ken Johnson, his feet atop his desk at the Educational Telecommunications Building.

The telephone Help Line and the television program aimed at retirement-aged Nebraskans is a successful merger of the two electronic media. The two are funded in part by a grant from the Nebraska Commission on Aging.

The half-hour weekly show, produced by the Nebraska ETV network, shows the activities of senior citizens across the state and provides information on social security, homestead exemptions, and other topics of interest to older Nebraskans.

It also serves as a resource service for older citizens with specific problems through the toll-free telephone Help Line (800-742-7351).

More than 137 people have called in since the show was first aired in November and another 100 have sent letters.

The questions, ranging from personal problems to requests for general information, have come from residents of more than 32 counties across the state.

"I can maintain my own home but I need to know where I can get some housekeeping help that wouldn't cost too much. Where can I go?" asked one lady caller.

"I paid for a magazine subscription but I am not getting it like I'm supposed to. What can I do?" another called asked.

"I am almost 80. The cleaning, ironing, bathing, fixing my hair and shopping is getting to be too much. My husband tries to help and does a pretty good job but he is almost 82 and nearly deaf. He doesn't want any kind of medical or nursing home type of arrangement. Is there some place where we could rent and get this type of assistance that wouldn't be a nursing home?" was the request of a small town resident.

Johnson and Assistant Producer Betty Adams cannot solve the individual problems themselves, but they do make contact with the proper agencies in that person's community.

A 78-year-old man who has cataracts couldn't convince his local doctor to operate on his eyes. "The doctor says my eyes aren't worth operating on . . . it seems to me it would help if I could have an operation," said the man when he turned to the Help Line for assistance.

Johnson sent the problem on to the Division of Rehabilitation Services for the Visually Impaired. Arrangements were made for the man to have the operation done by another doctor in another community.

The show itself, which is broadcast each Thursday at 6:30 p.m. and repeated each Friday at 7 a.m. and the following

A rock hunt with a retired cowboy, a 74-year-old pilot, a senior citizens band — the "Grand Generation" is going strong in Nebraska.

Tuesday at 7:30 a.m., features a regular cast of retirement-aged Nebraskans. They are Mrs. Maxine Morrison of Omaha, Mrs. Dorothy Switzer, who recently retired from the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and Harold T. Shay.

And almost every week the show features individual older Nebraskans or senior citizen programs from throughout the state.

Many of these segments were filmed on what Johnson calls "The Western Trip" taken in late summer.

There is a segment on the birthday party of a still-active 80-year-old woman who started the Meals on Wheels program in Alliance and who still calls bingo every Friday.

The filming crew went on a rock hunt around Fort Robinson with a retired cowboy, visited the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) in Chadron, oil painters in Gordon, a senior citizen band, including a 90-year-old dancer, in Wayne, and a retired gopher trapper.

"That's what I like to do best (filming)," said the 35-year-old Johnson, who describes with relish the older Nebraskans he has interviewed for the show. "We are concerned with showing that the scope of activities available to older Nebraskans is limited only by the imagination," said Johnson, who has learned quickly about the needs and problems of the elderly since he first began coordinating "Grand Generation" last summer.

The idea for a show which would offer ideas, motivation and help make senior citizens aware of benefits and programs has been around for several years. Funding it was the problem.

There is a need and an audience, said Ron Hull, assistant general manager, programming, Nebraska, with 12.4% of the population 65 or older, is tied with Iowa for second place for percentage of older residents.

"So many people, when they reach forced retirement age, go home and sit down. They don't think ahead to retirement," said Johnson. The program shows that retired Nebraskans can and are doing.

But "Grand Generation" itself may retire this summer when the one-year grant from the Nebraska Commission on Aging is depleted. A more than $70,000 request to fund the program for the 1974-75 fiscal year was cut from the ETV budget by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee. "We hope that somehow we can find the funds for it," said Paul Few, assistant manager, administration.

Sex Idol, Homemaker Are Global Images

By KATHLEEN TELTSCH

(C) New York Times News Service

United Nations, N.Y., — What is the image of today's woman in Canada, The Netherlands, Finland or Mexico?

The image there and elsewhere, concludes a United Nations report, fits one of two stereotypes:

—Woman as a sex idol obsessed with the need for masculine approval.

—Woman the homemaker with a cleanliness compulsion, forever sniffing the kitchen floor or the family wash.

The bluntly worded report — very different from the U.N. usually woolly-worded diplomatic jargon — was based on comments from governments and private organizations that were asked about the influence of mass media on the attitudes of society toward women.

The harshest grievances seemed aimed at the advertising media.

"Advertising," said the report in summing up the opinions expressed, "is the most insidious form of mass-media perpetuation of the derogatory image of women as sex symbols and as an inferior class of human beings."

In addition, The Netherlands complained about television shows portraying women in stereotype roles as seductresses or nagging wives. Ireland questioned why, when a woman achieved recognition, it was her sex and not her professional skill that was accentuated.

Why is it that a woman doctor discovers a cure, why never a man doctor.

The report cited a possible parallel between the broadcast media's endless jokes about mothers-in-law and nagging wives and "dumb blondes" and the kindly, illiterate "Uncle Tom" blacks most producers now have been shamed into dropping. The aim is not to replace the dumb blonde with a dumb man, the report said, but why belittle anyone?

Kurt Waldheim, the U.N. General Secretary, heard about women's efforts to improve both their image and their lives first hand the other day when he met here with Betty Friedan, the feminist activist.

Mrs. Friedan, who had requested the meeting, urged Waldheim to support strongly an international conference to be held during 1975, which the U.N. has designated as International Women's Year.

The United States delegation to the Commission on the Status of Women has proposed holding such a world parley. And Mrs. Friedan said one reason she is backing the idea is because she fears that the World Population Conference scheduled for August in Bucharest will slight the role of women.

"The population conference planners seem to think babies are brought by storks," Mrs. Friedan said she told the secretary general. "It made me wild."

The report on women's images, as are all such studies, was issued in Waldheim's name although he never laid eyes on it. It was based on responses from 28 of the 135 U.N. members — suggesting that it did not get front-burner attention in most world capitals.

She's Always On The Run

This Criminal Wants To Find Peace Of Mind

By GRACIA SIEB
Star Staff Writer

"I'm so busy, I don't know if I'm coming or going," blurts Kate Feutz as she hurriedly cleans off tables, transports the dishes to the kitchen, delivers orders of toast and fills coffee cups.

According to the research and statistics department of the Nebraska Department of Labor, there are 3,440 women who are working in either cleaning or food service in Lancaster County. And Mrs. Feutz just happens to be one of those who has been at waitressing for about 35 years.

"Just like going to a fire," she continues as she rushes around at half a walk and half a run, and all the while there is a "running" dialogue between Mrs. Feutz and the many customers.

"Will you be back Monday?" she asks one female customer.

"If I'm not late again," was the reply. "My husband forgot to set the alarm, so I was late today."

Mrs. Feutz responds with a friendly pat on the back and an amused chuckle and rapidly sets to work clearing the table and carrying the dirty cups and saucers to the kitchen with short, swift steps.

"I wash the dishes too," she noted, "that's what I was doing back there (in the kitchen)."

Voicing no particular likes or dislikes of her job, the 11-year employee of Terminal Drug concluded by saying, "Waitressing is all right, I guess. It's pretty hard work though, you practically have to run to get everything done."

MRS. FEUTZ... takes time out for conversation.

DEAR ABBY: Altho I am in prison, I am a loyal reader of your column. Mostly because I miss sharing life with people.

At times you have expressed faith in God. Deep in the night I am restless and unable to sleep because the memory of my crime (murder) haunts me. I have sought God's forgiveness and believe that Jesus died for our sins, but I am unable to find relief from my troubled conscience.

Abby, is murder a forgivable sin? I find no reference to it in the Bible, but there is reference to an eye for an eye. If you can give me the answer, you will do much for my peace of mind. Thank you.

A FRIEND IN RALEIGH, N.C.

DEAR FRIEND: All religions endorse the concept of forgiveness to one who is sincere in contrition and repentance. It was expressed in the Old Testament in Isaiah 55:7. "Let the sinner abandon his way and his thoughts and let him return unto the Lord for He will have mercy upon him and fully forgive." In fact, so strong is this feeling in the Bible it is repeated seven times in the Old Testament.

If a misdeed was committed, it can be fully atoned by paying one's debt to society and also by examining one's conscience and thru self-understanding changing one's ways and returning to the path of goodness. A beautiful expression of Divine forgiveness and mercy was given by Nahman of Bratslav, an 18th-Century sage: "There is no sin that will not be forgiven by sincere repentance."

To this may I add that the hardest person to forgive is oneself. God Bless.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HURTING DOWN DEEP IN PHILLY": Don't be ashamed of an honest emotion. There are no good losers. Only good actors.

Opening lead - five of hearts.

Bridge is a game of infinite variety. On the great majority of hands you can get by with the so-called normal plays, but, if you really want to excel, you have to be continuously on guard for the exceptions, when special treatment is required. In short, you must not take familiar situations for granted and play mechanically.

Assume you're East and that your illustrious partner, bless him, leads a heart. You take the ace and return the nine, South's ten losing to West's jack. Your partner continues with the king and this is ruffed in dummy with the ten.

It is at this point that you have a chance to rise and shine. If you overruff with the jack — which is certainly the natural thing to do — declarer will later finesse you out of the king and wind up making four spades. But if you are clever enough to overruff the ten with the king — certainly an unnatural thing to do — you will almost surely defeat the contract.

Let's consider the matter from South's viewpoint after he sees you overruff with the king. He will almost surely assume your partner has the jack of trumps and, whatever your return, he is highly likely to cash the A-Q in the hope of spearing your partner's jack.

It is unlikely to even occur to declarer that you could have the jack and overruff with the king — and he will almost automatically credit your partner with the jack. That is precisely the bill of goods you should be trying to sell declarer. If he buys it, he will live to regret it.

Are you missing the fun and money in plate collecting?

NORTHBROOK, Ill.—A successful art dealer in this Chicago suburb has announced a new, easy way to start collecting rare porcelain plates with the potential of becoming heirlooms of the future with exceptionally high resale value.

According to Thomas Gilmore II, president of this dealership, one decorative "annual" plate priced at $25 in 1965 now brings $1,050, and one china plate selling at $10 in 1969 now sells for $245. In the past only a few fortunate people could afford to collect works of art, but now literally thousands of collectors with average incomes enjoy this fascinating hobby for fun and profit.

MR. GILMORE says, "Since many plates do not increase in value, amateurs often make serious mistakes. It's critical to know what to look for, what to pay, when to sell, and much more." Even if you have never collected plates before, there are little-known guidelines that tell you how to own plates of the finest porcelain designed by a distinguished artist for a modest outlay.

To help you get started in the rewarding hobby of plate collecting, the dealer now offers a new free report just off the press. It tells you how to look for good design, rarity, historic importance, and other important clues to selecting the right plates.

THIS FREE REPORT is available to individuals who wish to own beautiful handcrafted plates produced in America and abroad. It tells how you can be one of the first to own a stunning porcelain made in France for a surprisingly low price and lists other selections that could become tomorrow's treasured heirlooms.

If you seek a new hobby that could lead to extra spare-time income, here's your opportunity to find out about the wonderful world of collecting objects d'art. The dealer invites individuals (not dealers) to send for a free copy of this valuable and interesting report.

To get yours, just send your name, address, and zip code to Thomas Gilmore, Bradford Galleries Exchange, 1026E Sunset Ridge, Northbrook, Ill. 60062. A postcard will do. There is no obligation for this service. Because of limited quantities, please mail your request by February 15, 1974, to receive your free copy.

Will this plate multiply in value to 10, 15 or even 20 times its original price as other plates have done?

Women's Organizations Urge Rape Law Reform

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Women's organization representatives Monday urged the Legislature to reform Nebraska's rape laws which, they said, are now weighted against the victim.

Speaking for the Women's Lobby, Karen Flowers asked the Judiciary Committee to amend the proposed revised criminal code to alter the rape statute's definitions, rules of evidence and penalty provisions.

The proposals would wipe out current rules which require corroborating evidence to support the testimony of a victim in order to obtain a conviction.

The amendments would also allow the victim to present some of her testimony to the judge in his private chambers, rather than in open court, and reduce penalty for rape in the hope of obtaining more convictions.

Current penalties provide for imprisonment from three years to life; the criminal code proposed in LB8 would provide for imprisonment from one to 50 years; the amendments provide for imprisonment from one to five years, a $10,000 fine, or both.

"Rape laws are in dire need of revision," Ms. Flowers told the committee. "They have the lowest conviction rate of any crimes of violence."

The requirement for corroborating evidence and cross-examination in open court prevent some victims from filing charges and result in "humiliation" of those that do," she said.

"You have a hard time deciding who is on trial," she declared.

The victim is "forced to expose her entire sex life to anyone who walks into the court" during the trial process, Ms. Flowers told the committee.

Under present law, "the woman, in effect, must come in and prove herself innocent," she said.

Ms. Flowers said it is also "the general practice of police not to believe a rape allegation."

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln disputed that statement as untrue.

Speaking for the Omaha Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, Barbara Hosfodd also urged abolition of the rule for corroboration.

In rape cases, "the defendant's interest is overrepresented" in comparison to that of the victim, she said.

Rape statutes were the major item of discussion in a final public hearing on LB8 and LB329, two versions of a revised criminal code which have been held for discussion since the 1973 Legislature.

The Women's Lobby, Ms. Flowers said, also favors "decriminalizing prostitution," but she told questioning committee members that she is "not prepared to say whether we favor legalizing it."

In LB8, the bill which is likely to be sent to the floor of the Legislature as the committee's preferred criminal code, prostitution carries a penalty of six months imprisonment, a $1,000 fine, or both.

Ron Allen, a University of Nebraska College of Law professor, told the committee he personally supports a reduced penalty for rape, but is concerned about removing the requirement for corroborating testimony.

Rape is "an allegation easily made and hard to defend against," he noted.

The committee decided to leave crimes of obscenity out of its comprehensive bill, and await a floor decision on anti-obscenity statutes.

Also held for later consideration after a public hearing was LB755, Sen. Fred Carstens' proposed alternative to the revised probate code contained in LB354.

LB755 is designed to speed up the process of probate without rewriting the probate statutes. It was opposed by the Women's Lobby, and attracted divided testimony from attorneys.

William Peters

Garage Sale Tax Change Is Proposed

By The Associated Press

A departure from the policy of requiring persons holding garage and porch sales to collect and remit state sales taxes was proposed to the Legislature's Revenue Committee Monday.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said a Revenue Department rule and regulation now makes such sales taxable, but said enforcement of the rule has not been given high priority "and no significant amounts are being collected at the present time."

"We could not be accused of being very vigorous in enforcement on garage sales," he observed.

Peters was commenting on a bill, LB820, sponsored by Sen. Herbert Duis of Gothenburg, which as written would simply exempt "occasional sales of $200 or less."

Peters proposed amendments which would exempt garage sales if held by an individual at his residence, if held no more than eight days in a year, if the items sold were acquired for personal use and if the seller were not in a related business.

Another Peters amendment would exempt church and civic organizations from benefit sales if the sales total no more than $1,000 in a calendar year.

The committee deferred action on the bill.

Peters said he is not altogether certain his department legally can order that garage sales be taxable. He said that if he were in the private practice of law, he would be tempted to challenge the rule on a contingency fee lawsuit (where the lawyer receives a percentage of the resulting award).

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has nominated Rear Adm. Owen Siler to be commandant of the Coast Guard, the White House said Monday.

Rear Adm. Ellis Lee Perry was nominated to be vice commandant, the White House said.

Truckers Win Sympathetic Response

Independent truckers won a sympathetic response to their problems on the floor of the Legislature Monday.

"We should consider some way to put the pressure on to help them," Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said.

Sen. Duke Snyder of Omaha said he is preparing legislative resolutions which would urge Congress to boost the maximum highway speed limit from 55 mph to 60 mph and ask it to "do something about the increasing cost of diesel fuel."

The current shutdown on the roads is "the only way the independent trucker is going to get any action," Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff declared.

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said citizens "should insist that the oil companies, which are making exorbitant profits, be called to account" for the present situation.

Action to meet the growing problem is "long overdue," Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton said.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said he too supports the independent truckers because "a man should be entitled to the means to earn a living."

But, Chambers declared, senators should relate their concern over the current situation to the concerns he expresses for the people he represents.

If independent truckers are justified in using violence to make their case, Chambers said, "understand what I'll do to help my children get freedom."

Most senators are concerned about the truck walkout because it may be difficult to transport hogs and cattle to market,

Chambers said. Children are more important to him, he suggested.

Simpson broached the subject of the truck shutdown shortly before the Legislature adjourned for the day, noting that the responsibility for meeting the situation has been bucked to the states.

But the problems are national in scope, he said, including rising fuel costs and the need to pass on increasing costs.

"There is no way they can run trucks on the road now at profit," Simpson said.

If the strike persists, he said, Nebraska's economy will be affected.

"We'll find out how many towns are totally dependent on trucks," he said. "There will be severe problems."

Nebraska may already be "awfully close to not being able to meet consumer problems," Simpson cautioned.

Snyder said truck drivers are "in the midst of a squeeze, with no way to pass on increasing costs."

Carpenter said he will ask the Legislature Tuesday to debate LB885, his bill to give the governor vast authority to suspend laws or contracts, if necessary, to meet energy demands.

"We're running out of time," he warned. "This state is on high center."

Open Meeting Proposal Advanced By Committee

The Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee Monday advanced bills to open all government meetings to the press, establish free child care centers for welfare mothers and allow voters to pick the ballot of either party at the primary election.

Efforts to make Sen. Jerome Warner's open meeting law (LB638) more restrictive failed as the committee advanced the bill with only Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue in opposition.

Lewis had sought an amendment to close meetings when the subject of personnel policies and wage negotiations were brought up. An effort to close meetings of judicial nominating commissions was also denied.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said, "I want everybody to be like this Legislature."

LB792, which expands day care services for Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) families, was also advanced over the opposition of Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City. No attempt was made to broaden the bill to include all income levels as had been suggested.

Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich's obscenity bill, LB815, was also advanced as was an amended LB868 which raises the salaries of tax commissioner, the state engineer, and the directors of banking, labor and insurance to $29,500 per year. Again Murphy was the lone opponent of the raises.

LB818 was also advanced; that

Two ADC Payment Hike Bills Sent To Floor By Committee

By United Press International

The Legislature's Health and Welfare Committee advanced to the floor Monday two bills to increase Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) payments.

One, LB977, was introduced by Sen. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove, committee chairman, at the request of the governor. The other, LB834, was introduced by Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood.

The governor's bill would increase ADC payment maximums from $124 to $165 per month for a mother and one child and from $34 to $40 for each additional child.

Schmit's proposal would increase payments from $124 to $175 and from $34 to $35.

Reservation Indians File Suit To Challenge Tax

A suit asking that the state be barred from taxing the incomes of Indians working and living on reservations was filed Monday in U.S. District Court.

The suit, filed by the Santee Sioux, Omaha and Winnebago tribes and one individual from each tribe, asks that the taxation be declared an "unlawful interference" with the Indians' "federally secured Constitutional and statutory rights."

Named as defendants are State Tax Commissioner William Peters and the Nebraska Department of Revenue.

Cited in the suit is a 1973 U.S. Supreme Court ruling on an Arizona case in which the court held that taxation interfered with treaties and statutes left to the "exclusive province of the federal government and Indians."

The ruling appears to conflict with a state attorney general's opinion which contends that a 1953 federal law gives Nebraska and five other states complete jurisdiction over civil matters involving Indians and that reservation Indians do have to pay the income tax in Nebraska.

(Arizona was not included in the federal law.)

The suit also cites an 1865 treaty with the Omaha Tribe, an 1868 treaty with the Santee Sioux Tribe and an 1865 treaty with the Winnebago Tribe which guarantees Indians on the reservations protection from outside interference.

Committee Kills Birth Control Information Bill

The Legislature's Public Health Committee killed a bill Monday that would have required counties to give birth control information along with marriage licenses.

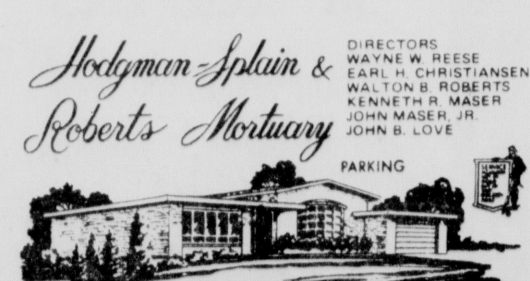

The bill, introduced by Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln, was opposed by the Catholic church. The committee refused to introduce another bill which was proposed by Dr. Henry D. Smith, director of the Health Department. It would have licensed ambulance personnel.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellvue told Smith that it was too late in the session to introduce bills unless they were very important.

It's happened to us, too.

The loss of a relative or close friend is hard to take. It's happened to us, and we know how it feels.

So we give you the kind of help we would hope for if our positions were reversed.

Agricultural Tax Okd On Land Near Cities

By The Associated Press

The legislature approved a bill Monday that would allow agricultural land near cities to be taxed at its value for agricultural land rather than its actual value.

The vote on LB359, introduced by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, was 39-6. It now goes to the governor for his signature.

Sens. John Cavanaugh, Glenn Goodrich and Duke Snyder of Omaha; Roland Luedtke and Harold Simpson of Lincoln and Herb Nore of Genoa voted against the bill.

There was no estimate of the fiscal impact it would have on local governments.

Warner said there was no way to tell what the fiscal impact would be because all land was not now assessed properly.

Legislative fiscal analyst Elton Ehrlich said he was not sure of the fiscal impact, but said he thought most of the impact would be in the Lincoln and Omaha areas.

Ehrlich said he thought most land outstate was now assessed at its value for agricultural purposes. Warner said this was wrong and there was no way to tell where the impact would be.

Fritz Meyer, Lancaster County assessor, estimated the bill would cost local government in the Lincoln area more than $180,000 per year.

The bill includes a carry-back provision so that lost taxes for a period of five years can be recovered if the land is sold for nonagricultural use.

Permission To Retain Highway Signs Urged

By The Associated Press

Nebraska's Legislature, on a 33-3 vote, asked federal highway officials Monday to allow the state to leave in place the highway attraction signs the state has placed along the interstate highway.

The state was allowed to erect the signs experimentally, but Federal Highway Administrator Norbert T. Tiemann, former Nebraska governor, has now directed that the signs be removed by June 1.

The signs call attention to points of scenic, historic and public attraction interest.

Nebraska also has erected signs giving dial readings for area radio stations, but these are not affected by the removal order, the legislature was told.

The resolution asking federal officials to permit the attraction signs to remain on a year-to-year basis was sponsored by Sen. John Savage of Omaha. The dissenting votes for adoption were cast by James Dickinson of Millard, Duke Snyder of Omaha and Ramey Whitney of Chappell.

Whitney proposed amending the resolution to call for moving the signs to the edge of the right of way, which would be nearly 660 feet from the roadway. He said this would eliminate 95 percent of the collision hazard and might be a compromise which federal officials would accept. But the amendment was rejected 10-17.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, one of several senators speaking in support of the Savage resolution, said the signs "are in good taste, well done, and there's not a proliferation of them."

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said "It's time to stop having the ring put in our nose" under threat of losing federal funds.

Savage said a department of economic development study indicated that during the summers of 1972 and 1973, travelers were led by the signs to spend from $3.3 million to $3.5 million in the state which would not otherwise be spent.

Bill To Change Holiday Dates Is Withdrawn

Nebraska will continue to celebrate Veterans' Day and Memorial Day on the traditional dates, at least as far as legislation pending in the unicameral is concerned.

Sen. Duke Snyder of Omaha asked the Legislature Monday to allow him to withdraw his bill that would have changed the holidays to Mondays.

The federal government switched the dates to Monday, but the Legislature voted last session to change the celebrations back to the traditional dates.

Sens. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln and Ernest Chambers of Omaha expressed interest in taking over Snyder's bill, but the Legislature allowed Snyder to withdraw his bill and no further action was taken.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Tuesday

Hope seems to be a special quality of Capricorn. No matter how dimmed, this native maintains "hope." Many times, Capricorn cannot define the specific hope. However, there is always a goal where this native is concerned, even if it is not clearly outlined. Capricorn is the Tenth House and it is Saturn and the road for the native is strewn with adversity. But there is hope — it springs eternal and finally lights a path out of the wilderness. Capricorn and crises go together — they are companions. Capricorn can maneuver, backtrack, get second emotional wind and finally define "the hope" and do something concrete about fulfilling it.

Sellout Crowd Eyed For East-LNE Clash

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Pershing Auditorium manager Ike Hoig realizes there are two college basketball games in Lincoln Tuesday night. But he doesn't expect them to affect his crowd for the Lincoln Northeast-Lincoln East showdown.

"We're adding 1,500 to 2,000 seats to accommodate the East and Northeast fans," Hoig said Monday. "No other game is going to affect the way these two schools follow their teams. They're too loyal."

According to Hoig, 11 Northeast-East games over the last four seasons "have practically all been sellouts. Of course, the teams have been hotter than a firecracker and that brings their fans through the door."

"But," adds Hoig, "East is very good on any occasion, following their athletic teams. And Northeast is particularly good. The other two schools (Southeast and Lincoln High) don't follow very well."

Hoig said regular capacity for basketball at Pershing is 4,570, but Tuesday's extra seating will boost that total to 6,200 to 6,500.

East coach Paul Forch concedes that the expected individual battle between all-state candidates Curt Hedberg of East and Terry Novak of Northeast is a natural promotion for the contest.

"But," says Forch, "I feel the game is going to be won in other places. The guards will be a key factor. The bench will be important, too. Northeast showed an exceptional ability to initiate momentum from the bench against Southeast."

While Northeast coach Ed Johnson has confirmed the 6-4 Novak will guard the 6-8 Hedberg by necessity, Forch relates that Hedberg may not be matched with Novak at all times.

"Hedberg might be on him some of the time," according to Forch, "but it will depend on the alignment we have and where our emphasis is. We use a lot of defensive variations and try to assess where we might be able to hurt the opponent the most."

Forch is impressed with Novak's talents. "He has all the tools," the East coach says. "He's got good guards, timing, quickness and stamina."

Hedberg, however, is the Trans-Nebraska Conference's leading scorer with a 20.3 average. Novak is averaging 15.3 points a game.

Forch is confident "we have better quickness than we've had the last couple of years and we hope this will help us in a crucial game."

"Without a doubt, the kids are more motivated, more hyper for a game like this," according to Forch. "The game builds itself up and I know we set our sights on it.

"When kids are so keyed up," adds Forch, "sometimes it takes longer to loosen up. Being tight may help you on defense, but it can hurt you offensively. You have to guard against a poor start or one team can blow the other right off the court."

That's seldom happened in the last four years of the 6-year series. After losing its first five games to Northeast, East has won six of the last 11 meetings to trail 10-6.

Northeast's Johnson not only faces East Tuesday night. His Rockets host ninth-ranked North Platte Friday night at East and entertain Grand Island Saturday afternoon.

"I don't recall ever having three games in one week during the regular season," says Johnson. "Our kids should be in good enough physical shape for this type of thing though."

Johnson says he doesn't "anticipate any lineup changes," despite playing his substitutes extensively in last week's 10-point win over Southeast.

"We might be a little more ready to change people once the game starts though," offers Johnson. "This is a nice contest to go into. There's more excitement. The student body is more stirred up than usual. We appreciate this type of opportunity."

Since the first meeting between the two schools counts in the Trans-Nebraska Conference standings, Tuesday's contest could determine the conference championship. Both teams are 3-0 in the league.

York Picks NE

Lincoln Journal and Star prep writer Randy York predicts Northeast will defeat East Tuesday night "although East probably has more overall quickness, especially at the guards." York also believes Lincoln Southeast will avenge an early-season loss to Lincoln High Wednesday night at Pershing Auditorium in another pre-weekend game.

Step one towards finishing in the upper division of the Big Eight's basketball chase begins at home for Nebraska.

"Our players still think we're capable of finishing in the first division," said NU coach Joe Cipriano. "But I'll tell you this, Iowa State is one of those clubs we've got to beat to get there."

The Cyclones, who invade the NU Coliseum for a 7:35 p.m. Tuesday test, are in fifth place with a 2-4 record while the Huskers are tied with Missouri for sixth at 1-4. An NU win would propel Nebraska past ISU into the top rung in the second division.

But that's not where the Huskers want to be.

"I'm sure they're going to come in here with a lot of determination since they got a good win Saturday (a 78-75 triumph at home against last-place Oklahoma State)," said Cipriano. "That stopped their two-game losing streak."

And a losing streak is something Nebraska has "going" against the Cyclones.

The Huskers who haven't beaten the Cyclones since 1972 when NU took a 76-71 verdict in Lincoln, have lost the last four ISU encounters and their last three games.

"ISU is a strong rebounding team that's added a fine fast break to their attack," said Cipriano, who scouted the Cyclones against Oklahoma State. "Their guards are good and if they get some inside play with their outside play, they'll be difficult to cover."

The two leading scorers for ISU have played major roles in boosting the Cyclones to an overall 11-7 mark.

Robert Wilson
Cyclone Standout

Hercle Ivy, a 6-3 sophomore guard from St. Louis, is averaging 18.2 points-per-game.

Robert Wilson, a senior who is a transfer from Southwestern Louisiana, is averaging 17.5 after connecting for 22 points against K-State and 19 against Oklahoma State in his last two efforts.

"Wilson is a great 6-6 guard-forward prospect for the pros," Cipriano said. "And Ivy is one of the better players in the league. With their good inside people like DeLoss (6-10 junior Craig) and Looft (6-9 junior Larry) they have a pretty well-balanced team."

The Cyclones, who played well in the Big Eight Tournament in late December at Kansas City in finishing second, will again have assistant coach Gus Guydon as acting head coach.

Guydon, who has guided ISU since a Dec. 21 loss at Tulsa, is filling in for head coach Maury John. John, who was hospitalized shortly before Christmas will be in the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., for chemotherapy treatments and will miss the NU game.

Although Jerry Fort appears to be well on his way towards setting a Nebraska sophomore field goal record, he will need a superlative effort on Tuesday to snap it.

Fort has 135 field goals while the NU standard is 147 by Tom Baack during the 1965-66 campaign. The Chicago guard only needs 11 field goal attempts to better Baack's 325 sophomore record.

The contest will be the 151st in the series between the two squads that Nebraska leads 87-63. Cipriano is 13-10 against ISU while he's only 1-4 against John-coached teams.

Preliminary Game

Coach Al Nissen's Nebraska junior varsity basketball team will face Iowa State in a 5:15 p.m. preliminary game in the NU Coliseum.

The Huskers will be seeking to rebound from a 98-77 loss at Platte Junior College last Thursday night. NU is 4-1.

Buffalo Paces NBA Leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — If statistics are an indicator, rookie Ernie DiGregorio hasn't taken long to learn the professional basketball ropes.

Now performing his wizardry for the Buffalo Braves, DiGregorio leads in free-throw percentage on a .920 average from the line, and assists with 8.2 per game.

Golden State's Rick Barry, who is shooting from the foul line at a .906 clip, and Houston's Calvin Murphy with 7.2 assists, are DiGregorio's closest competitors.

Bob McAdoo, on the receiving end of many of DiGregorio's passes at Buffalo, continues to pace the league in scoring with 29.1. The Atlanta duo of Pete Maravich and Lou Hudson follow with 28.3 and 26.1, respectively.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks is the field goal leader, scoring on 597 of 1,102 attempts for .542. McAdoo's .530 percentage is good for second.

Elvin Hayes of the Capital Bullets is tops in rebounding with 18.7. Boston's Dave Cowen's is next with 16.1.

Los Angeles' Elmore Smith leads in blocked shots with 5.43 and Hudson is the steal leader, swiping at a rate of 2.63 a game.

CREIGHTON ROMPS, 81-47

... Heck Sparks Bluejays Past St. Thomas

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — The 4,027 fans gave Creighton's Mike Heck a well-deserved standing ovation when he left the game.

The 7-0 Heck contained St. Thomas' 7-3 Bob Rosier here Monday night at Civic Auditorium and led the Bluejays to an easy 81-47 win over the Toms.

The victory boosted Creighton's record to 17-4, while St. Thomas dropped to 15-4.

Although Heck didn't start, it was his play that turned the game around after the Toms took a 9-4 lead with 16:39 left in the first half.

Heck stymied Rosier on offense, neutralized the boards, and forced the Minnesotan to commit three quick personal fouls.

Heck made three straight hook shots over Rosier to lift his team to a 23-19 lead with 7:08 remaining in the first half.

Rosier, a senior, tried to stop the Papillion sophomore by holding him but was caught and quickly found himself on the bench.

With Rosier absent, Creighton raced to a 38-23 halftime advantage and was never headed.

The Toms committed 10 turnovers and only made 10 of 30 field goals in the first half compared to the 'Jays' three turnovers and 14 of 28 from the field.

Heck continued to dominate the more-experienced Rosier in the second half and finished with a collegiate best of 20 points on eight of 11 field goals and four of six free throws in only 19 of a possible 40 minutes of play.

Rosier, who entered the game averaging 26 points and 19 rebounds, only managed 12 points on four of 14 from the field and four of eight free throws and just had eight rebounds.

"Mike's performance made McGuire Leaves Intensive Care

Columbia, S.C. (UPI) — A spokesman for Baptist Hospital said Monday South Carolina basketball coach Frank McGuire had improved enough to be transferred from the intensive care unit to another section of the hospital.

McGuire, admitted late Wednesday for an acute intestinal disorder, was listed in good condition but there was no word on when he would be released from the hospital.

Pittsburgh Breaks Into Top Ranks

By Associated Press

The University of Pittsburgh basketball team, enjoying its best season ever, made it into the Top Ten in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday for the first time in recent memory.

The Panthers, with 17 straight victories after an opening loss, beat Penn State, Westminster and William & Mary last week to advance from No. 13 to No. 10 in the AP's nationwide poll of a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. Only Maryland-Eastern Shore, with a 19-0 record, has a longer winning streak among major schools than Pittsburgh.

UCLA continued to hold the No. 1 position by a comfortable margin. The Bruins, 16-1 after beating Southern California, collected 46 of 48 first-place votes and a total of 976 points.

North Carolina State, 15-1, remained second after stopping Maryland and Virginia. The Wolfpack picked up 830 points. Notre Dame, which raised its record to 15-1 after downing Marquette, DePaul and Davidson, held the No. 3 spot with 776 points and one vote for No. 1.

North Carolina, 15-1, maintained the No. 4 position. The Tar Heels picked up 643 points after beating Wake Forest and Clemson. Vanderbilt was up two places to No. 5 by virtue of victories over Kentucky and Florida State. The Commodores, 16-1, earned 507 points and the remaining first-place vote.

Marquette, 17-2, dropped one spot to No. 6 after losing to Notre Dame and beating DePaul. Maryland, 13-4, also dropped one notch to No. 7 with a loss to North Carolina State and a victory over Duke.

Alabama, 15-2, held the No. 8 slot after beating Florida and Auburn. Long Beach State, 16-2, was up one peg to No. 9 with triumphs over California-Santa Barbara and Oral Roberts.

Providence dropped two places to No. 11.

major factor in the Toms' low field goal shooting percentage, according to Sutton.

"Mike kept St. Thomas outside and forced the poor percentage shot," Sutton said, in noting the Toms only made 19 of 66 field goals in the game to the 'Jays' 33 of 63.

Heck was helped by Doug Brookins' 17 points on eight of 17 field goals and one of three free throws and Gene Harmon's 16 points on six of 11 from the field and four of four free throws.

Terry Mikan, son of former Minnesota all-American and Laker all-pro George Mikan, topped the Toms in scoring.

Mikan made six of 20 field goals and one of two free throws for 13 points.

McKeon Aims For Top With 1974 KC Royals

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

All you have to do to encourage Jack McKeon to discuss his Kansas City Royals is mention how surprising the 1973 Royals were.

"I wasn't surprised we finished second," said McKeon, who spent four years managing the American Association Omaha Royals before earning his chance at the "Big Royals" last summer. "We had our sights on first place, not second."

"It's no challenge going for second. I never shoot for anything but the top," said McKeon, who compiled an 88-74 record last season in his rookie year as a major league baseball manager. "If we had thought about finishing second then it might have been good, but we want the top."

McKeon and other members of the Royals staff and players were in Lincoln Monday afternoon as the sixth annual Royals' Goodwill Caravan began a four-day promotion tour. The group, which also met media representatives in St. Joseph, Mo., and Omaha on Monday, swings through Iowa, Missouri and Kansas before returning to Kansas City Thursday.

Although McKeon said he knew he eventually would manage in the majors, he noted he was more than content to stay in Omaha until his opportunity arrived.

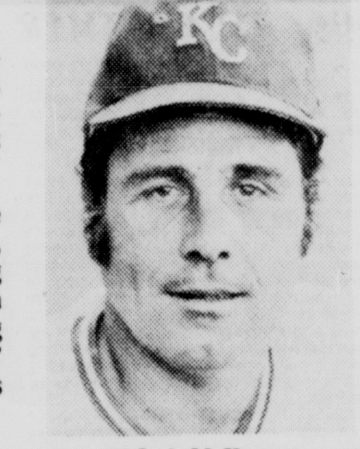

"I knew I was going up sometime," he said. "But while I was waiting, I was with some great people and some great baseball fans in Omaha. I was very content to stay there until my time came. In fact, they (Omaha) gave me a night on Aug. 27, 1972."

"I guess they figured that they didn't know where I was going to be in 1973, but that I wouldn't be in Omaha," he said.

Terming the Royals vastly improved from the 1973 club that finished just six games behind eventual world champion Oakland in the American League West, McKeon labeled pitching as the biggest boost to the 1974 Royals.

"For the first time, we have five established pitchers who can help us," McKeon said. "And with Lindy McDaniel (acquired in a winter trade from the New York Yankees for Lou Piniella) we have an anchorman for the bullpen."

The biggest acquisition in the pitching department was obtaining Nelson Briles from Pittsburgh and Marty Pattin from Boston. Those two will join Steve Busby, Al Fitzmorris and Paul Splittorff in the starting rotation.

McKeon said Fran Healy has established himself as the club's top catcher after stroking a .276 average in 95 Royals' games last season.

With John Mayberry at first base, Cookie Rojas at second, Fred Patek at shortstop and Paul Schaaf at third, the Royals are firmly set in the infield. It's the outfield where the largest question marks loom.

"Amos Otis is our anchorman," McKeon said. "But that's where the biggest battle will be. Hal McRae (who slipped to a .234 batting average last season), Frank Ortenzio, Rick Reichardt, Jim Wohlford, Al Cowens and Steve Hovley will all be in the race."

Can that make up the difference that existed last year between Oakland and Kansas City?

"1973 proved one thing to us... Before we always felt we had a chance to win, but we never really knew we could win," he

Free Throw Victors Named

A total of 256 boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 13 entered the fifth annual free throw shooting contest, which was sponsored by Lincoln Elks Lodge No. 80 at the Northeast Family 'Y' Saturday.

The seven winners — in three categories for boys and four girls' divisions — qualified to advance to the state championships to be held on the Kearney State College campus this Saturday afternoon.

They, and the runners-up in each division, will be the guests of the Lincoln Elks Lodge explained. "Now we know we can win."

"I also don't think Oakland will be as strong without Dick Williams (last year's manager who has retired from baseball in a contract rift)," he added. "I think they're going to miss him. He was worth at least five or six games."

And that's precisely how far back the 1973 Royals were.

But McKeon still labeled Oakland as the favorite, with the others closely bunched. "You can throw the rest of the teams in a hat. Pitching will be the key to who wins," he predicted.

While some managers note the difference between the majors and high minors, McKeon terms them both "about the same."

"There's really no difference. I wasn't awed by the majors," he said. "It's all a game of managing people whether you're an editor managing people in a newspaper or managing baseball players. It all pertains to actual communication with people. You might say it's a people business."

A people business which McKeon and the Royals hope this season will provide Kansas City with its first World Series title.

Platte College Seeking To Clinch NJCC Title

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

The worst Platte Junior College can do this week is tie for the Nebraska Junior College Conference basketball title.

McCook hosts the league-leading Raiders Saturday night in a game that interests Northeastern Tech of Norfolk and Nebraska Southern of Fairbury.

The Columbus team is 9-2 in the NJCC and the McCook game is the last conference game.

Northeastern is 5-3 and Nebraska Southern 4-3 in NJCC games and both would share the conference title with Platte, if they won the rest of their conference games.

McCook upset Nebraska Southern, 82-80, in overtime Saturday night after trailing by 18 points at halftime.

However, Raiders' coach Gene Torczon is hoping to avoid the same result. "We know McCook is a good team and we'll have to play at our best in order to win," Torczon said.

Wildcats Clobber Cowboys

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State's zone defense, with guards Lon Kruger and Danny Beard applying the pressure out front, held Oklahoma State in check as the Wildcats rolled to a 65-48 Big Eight Conference basketball victory Monday night.

K-State forced the Cowboys into 14 turnovers, and made them aimlessly bang away from the outside for only 31 per cent shooting from the field.

The Wildcats rolled to a 33-20 halftime lead and extended that margin to as many as 20 points during the second half.

Kruger and forward Larry Williams each had 12 points to lead the way for the Wildcats, 6-1 in conference play and 14-5 overall.

Forward Kevin Fitzgerald had a game high 13 points and center Andy Hopson grabbed 16 rebounds for the Cowboys, 1-6 and 7-12.

The conference races in the Nebraska College Conference and Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference should also shape up more after this week.

NCC leader Kearney hosts Chadron, while NIAC frontrunner Hastings travels to Midland and then hosts Nebraska Wesleyan and NIAC contender Doane plays at Dana and entertains Midland.

Doane hasn't beat Dana in Blair for two years and the Tigers figure they must continue winning to stay with Hastings.

Hastings Cites NU's Osborne

HASTINGS, Neb. (AP) — Several hundred persons shook hands with the head coach of the Nebraska football team Monday during Tom Osborne Day activities at the Imperial Mall in Hastings.

The former Hastings College athletic star was given a day following the end of his first season as head coach at Nebraska. His team won nine games, lost two and tied one. Included was a victory over Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

Interviews on the mall by news media representatives were included in the program.

Mayor Monte Malout presented Osborne with the key to the city, and the Husker coach was given three scrolls signed by residents of Hastings.

Area cheerleaders and the Hastings High pep band were in attendance.

Kansas Topples Colorado

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Kansas uncorked a balanced attack paced by Rick Suttle and led all the way to dispose of Colorado 81-66 and stay atop the Big Eight basketball heap Monday night.

Roger Morningstar ran off six quick points to give the Jayhawks a starting edge. They led 41-30 at the half and were ahead by as much as 19 midway in the second half.

The Jayhawks had five men in double figures, topped by Suttle, who again came off the bench and tied for game honors with 20 points. Norman Cook followed with 19 for KU.

Irish Nip Spartans

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Freshman Bill Paterno hit a 19-foot jump shot with two seconds left Monday night to give third-ranked Notre Dame a tough 91-89 college basketball victory over Michigan State.

It was the Fighting Irish's 16th victory in 17 games this season.

Michigan State, 11-7, had a chance to win it, calling two time outs in the closing minute with the game tied to set up one last shot. However, Terry Furlow was short on a jumper with nine seconds on the clock and Notre Dame ended up getting the ball out of bounds.

The Irish threw the ball in and passed it down the court. Then Paterno broke the Spartan hearts, as time supposedly ran out.

Officials ruled one second remained, but it wasn't enough time for the Spartans to get off a desperation shot.

Michigan State, which upset Big Ten leader Purdue 76-74 on a last-second shot Saturday, had surged to a 10-2 lead in the opening minutes before the Irish got going.

From then on, the game was nip-and-tuck, although Notre Dame did pull away briefly, taking a nine-point edge with seven minutes left.

Michigan State outscored the Irish 12-2 in the next 2:20, then it was a battle to the wire. John Shumate led the Notre Dame scorers with 27 points, 21 in the first half, while Gary Brokaw added 21.

Mike Robinson, who scored the winning bucket in the final second against Purdue, topped MSU with 31 points, while Furlow added 22.

Law Firm Finally Wins 12th And H Zoning Dispute

The Lincoln Star 15
Tuesday, Feb 5, 1974

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln law firm has finally won its battle with the City Council to convert a former fraternity house at 12th and H into professional offices.

On Monday, the council approved the application of Douglas Kluender for a special permit to allow the firm of Healey, Healey, Brown and Burchard to move into the fraternity.

That action was made possible by the council's adoption several weeks ago of an amendment to the city's zoning ordinance allowing professional offices in the E-1 Multiple zoning district.

Before gaining city endorsement of that change, Kluender had been denied two change of zone applications.

Kluender agreed to several conditions recommended by Planning Director Doug Brogren, including construction of 12 parking spaces in the lot behind the fraternity house.

In other action the council, at the instigation of Councilman Max Denney, will place an ordinance authorizing the appointment of a fourth Municipal Court judge on third reading next Monday for final action.

The council has been holding off action on that appointment pending a decision on the location of a fourth courtroom.

Plans agreed to by the County-city Building Committee first called for construction of a temporary facility in the hallway on the second floor of the building.

Then the city considered reshuffling the water and personnel departments, then just personnel, to allow that department to be remodeled into the courtroom.

Original Plan

Last week the building committee, in the absence of all three county commissioners, voted to revert back to the original temporary plan.

Denney said the court docket is piling up while "musical chairs is being played" on who goes where in City Hall.

"While the building committee is fiddling, Rome is burning," he remarked.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said she and Councilman Steve Cook, members of the building committee, are quite concerned about the dilemma.

Said Denney, "I know, but I'm not referring to this half of the building committee."

Not Enough Notice?

All three county commissioners said they had not received adequate notice on the last committee meeting and two of the three cited prior commitments.

City Atty. Dick Wood pointed out that the three present Municipal Court judges have requested no action on the appointment until courtroom space is decided upon.

However, Denney said, "I know, but I disagree."

The building committee is scheduled to meet again Tuesday.

A number of neighborhood residents protested that designation last week.

First Requested

The ordinance initially had been requested by the council during discussions of proposed Department of Roads improvements for Hwy. 2.

Acting on a measure held over from last week, the council unanimously approved a State Crime Commission request affirming that the city will continue to provide police patrol services to the Lincoln Municipal Airport.

Wood explained that the Law

Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) requires that no police officer hired through the program be laid off when the federal grant expires.

When asked by the council if such a requirement was approved in a federal grant with the Department of Transportation Alcohol Safety Action Program (ASAP) funds, Police Lt. Gene Armstead said such a requirement was not made.

When asked why the LEAA required the proviso, Armstead quipped, "I suppose because one is the Justice Department and the other is the Department of Transportation."

In other action the council officially approved establishing joint use of recreational facilities between the city and the school board for use of Irvingdale Park.

The city and school board are building a joint recreational center at Irvingdale school.

The council also:

RTSD Working To Eliminate West O Crossing

Railroad Transportation Safety District (RTSD) Director Marvin Nuernberger told the RTSD Board Monday that he is working with Burlington Northern officials on a plan to abandon the heavily traveled track crossing West O.

Nuernberger said he is working on plans to include the West O track crossing in the district's federally approved demonstration project as a number two priority.

Before the track can be relocated south of O and across Salt Creek, he said a public hearing will be held on the environmental impact statement in early March with the project finally to be approved by the Federal Highway Administration.

Nuernberger said he is at a loss to explain criticism leveled at the district, most recently by State Sen. Steve Fowler.

He said the RTSD is leading efforts to relocate a section of the track and said a solution will take time.

It would take five to six years to obtain federal dollars and construct a motor vehicle viaduct across West O. The Department of Roads estimated that viaduct would cost between $1 and $1.5 million alone, not including extending the viaduct over West P or relocating that street.

He estimated it would cost between $1.5 and $2.5 million to abandon and relocate the BN track.

RTSD legal counsel Robert Guenzel pointed out that BN spent $900,000 last year to upgrade that track, a move originally favored by many West O businessmen.

However, when the coal train traffic increased, interrupting traffic on heavily traveled O, the businessmen objected.

Guenzel pointed out that some merchants want the track out, while those involved in a proposed industrial district north of West O want the track left in for their use.

Regarding criticism that the district "seems to be overly friendly with the railroads to the detriment of the community," Nuernberger stated, "We aren't going to get to first base without the cooperation of the railroads."

Responding to Fowler's criticism of LB717, a legislative bill giving the district limited powers of eminent domain, Guenzel attempted to explain why the eminent domain proceedings would not apply to land owned by the railroads.

Guenzel said the federal law under which the RTSD's demonstration project is authorized requires the consent of any such projects by each railroad involved.

"If they (the railroads) approve, then there's no need to condemn the property," he said.

If the railroads do not approve, then no federal dollars are available and "we don't have the money to do it alone," he said. Eminent domain powers then would be pointless, he contended.

Secondly, Guenzel said the shipper's rights issue has not been settled, either locally or at the national level.

In a letter to the council, Guenzel said it remains unsettled "whether adjacent landowners with access to the railroad property are entitled to compensation for a public taking of the railroad."

He said if condemnation does occur, such compensation would be "desirable or legally necessary."

However, LB717 does not include such property in the eminent domain section and "totally avoids this question," Guenzel explained.

He pointed out that the RTSD does not contemplate any track abandonment "that would deprive any shipper of access to rail service" at this time.

Guenzel said the limitation of the eminent domain powers seem desirable from a public policy standpoint since the powers written into the bill are the "minimum necessary to accomplish the purposes of the district."

Mayor, Six Council Members Oppose Term Limitation

A proposed legislative bill prohibiting Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf from seeking a third term in office drew strenuous vocal opposition from the mayor and six of seven council members Monday.

At issue is LB678 amended by State Sen. Steve Fowler to limit the mayors in primary class cities to only two consecutive terms. Lincoln is the only primary class city in Nebraska.

The council officially will take action opposing the amended bill at next week's regular council meeting.

Councilman John Robinson said he favored the legislation during a discussion of the city's legislative program.

Schwartzkopf told city lawmakers that while he has not made up his mind on seeking a third term, LB678 violates the concept of a home rule charter.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said she was "very disturbed" that the public had no opportunity to comment on the proposed amendment.

Fowler introduced that amendment following the public hearing on the bill.

As introduced by Sen. Wally Barnett for the city, the measure was intended to clear up legal ambiguities resulting from codification of local election laws enacted by the 1973 Legislature. Barnett said he supports Fowler's amendment.

City Atty. Dick Wood said the amendment was "probably unconstitutional" since it would result in a violation of the city's home rule charter.

Schwartzkopf suggested that if the state senators want to limit the terms of office holders, that limitation should be extended to "state legislators, council members, county commissioners—clear across the state."

Referring to Barnett's comments concerning last year's legislative battle over district election of council members, Schwartzkopf admitted he campaigned "vigorously" against that measure.

The mayor said it "is a bold-faced lie" that he threw "verbal darts" at the senators for supporting the district election concept.

Council members voiced surprise at the amendment since no mention of the bill was made at a meeting last Tuesday with Lincoln's legislative delegation.

release vast amounts of radiation into the atmosphere.

The scientists, who call themselves the Union of Concerned Scientists, have alleged that inadequate reactor parts were slipping through quality assurance inspections, that illogical reactor design could impair the performance of some safety systems, and that the AEC was ignoring these possibilities.

Considering that hundreds of reactors will be in use in the coming decades and because many of the 800 safety occurrences weren't detected during normal design and construction, the report said: "One could conclude that current AEC review and inspection practices need improving for the future, primarily in areas where little or no review or inspection is currently performed."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission released on Monday a controversial report that raises questions about safety of past nuclear power plants.

The authors of the report — nine AEC experts — criticized aspects of the agency's reactor inspection and quality-assurance programs.

They called for expanded efforts by the AEC and the nuclear industry to assure quality of reactor components during manufacture.

Reactor designs also should be further scrutinized seeking safety oversights, they said, and increased efforts should be made to insure that reactors are constructed and operated properly.

The report noted that in a 17-month period beginning Jan. 1, 1972, the nation's nuclear power reactors experienced 800 "safety related abnormal occurrences."

Design or fabrication errors were the primary cause of one-quarter of the abnormalities, the report said. The rest were caused by operator errors, improper maintenance, incorrect

Truckers Reluctant To Go East

By The Associated Press

Truck traffic and fuel sales at truck stops appeared somewhat reduced Monday, according to Col. C.P. Karthaus, commander of the Nebraska State Patrol.

Karthaus said truckers seemed most hesitant about trips into states in the eastern part of the country.

There have been several isolated reports of threats, Karthaus said, apparently designed to "harass and intimidate" drivers.

Gov. J. James Exon has directed the patrol to contact truck stop operator and drivers and report to him on the situation.

Meanwhile, the Central Nebraska Packing Co. of North Platte announced it has cut slaughtering operations by 50% because it cannot ship its horse meat products east due to the truckers strike, according to Duane D. Struther, general manager.

Shut Down Totally

"If we can't move any more product out of here, there's a probability we'll be shutting down altogether," Struther added.

The plant employs 115 persons.

Two company trucks turned around in Missouri during the weekend after learning of violence further east, he said.

The company ships horse meat to New York for transport to Europe for human consumption. It also sends horse meat and dog food by truck to Florida for use

Missouri Girl, 16, Is Charged In Falls City; Boy Friend Dead

By DEAN TERRILL

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Falls City — Two felony charges and one misdemeanor charge have been filed in Richardson County Court against Maxine L. Wood, 16, in connection with a series of Saturday incidents that ended in a fatal shootout here.

The St. Joseph, Mo., girl surrendered after her boy friend,

Atchison Couple Feels Fortunate To Be Alive

Atchison, Kan. (AP) — An elderly Atchison couple felt lucky to be alive Monday after a bout with a young Missouri man, 19-year-old William Kotsonis, and his companion, Maxine Wood, 16.

Kotsonis was shot to death near Falls City, Neb., Saturday and the girl is being held in jail in lieu of bond on several charges.

William Glammann and his wife, Vida, said the pair broke into their home about eight miles northwest of Atchison, finding Glammann in the living room and his wife in the kitchen.

Glammann said Kotsonis pointed a service revolver at Mrs. Glammann and said, "This is it."

Mrs. Glammann said in an interview Monday that she replied, "Oh God, we are going to be killed." She said she dropped to her knees on the floor in fright and the pair went into the living room where her husband was sitting.

Glammann asked, "What the hell are you doing here? What do you want?" He recalled that he was told to "shut up" and take some scissors he had in his hand and throw them on the floor, and kick them away. He followed the instructions.

Glammann was asked if he had any guns in the house and gave them a .410 gauge shotgun and a .22 caliber rifle. He said the man gave the girl a gun to hold on them while he went outside to see if a car in the garage would start.

Glammann said he was warned, "Your wife will be dead before we leave." Telephone wires into the house were cut. When the girl started to take shells out of the gun, she was told there might be other weapons in the house.

Glammann said both got into the car, putting their stolen car into the garage. But they failed to take the keys to a pickup truck and the couple got into the truck and drove to a nearby neighbor's home to sound the alarm.

able to post bond, which was set at $5,000.

According to Richardson County Sheriff L. D. Camblin, a preliminary hearing is tentatively scheduled for Feb. 8. The court was expected to appoint a defense attorney for Miss Wood Monday.

Camblin said he is still puzzled about why Kotsonis, a student at Western College in St. Joseph, fled from law officers Saturday. Firing at officers much of the way, he allegedly used four stolen cars in a 50-mile chase that ended when one car spun into a ditch at Falls City. Miss Wood allegedly was driving at least part of the time.

Although Kotsonis was on probation for a 1972 armed robbery in Kansas City, Camblin said he apparently had not been linked to any crimes since that incident. He said that to his knowledge, Miss Wood has not been in "serious trouble" before, but had run away from home at least twice.

"She said she crawled out of an upstairs bedroom window at her parents' home early Saturday morning with her boy friend's help," the sheriff said.

"She said they left St. Joseph on foot and walked several miles before the car episodes started."

Camblin quoted both Miss Wood and Kotsonis' mother as saying Kotsonis "had often told them he'd never be taken alive."

Garden County Sheriff Reports 'No New Leads'

Oshkosh — "No further leads" developed Monday in the hunt for the man who held an Oshkosh farm couple at gunpoint for 16 hours during the weekend, according to Garden County Sheriff William Keisel.

Authorities say the description given by the couple of the man matches that of Robert Earl Fritz, 34, an escapee from the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Sheriff Keisel said it is believed the man headed north from Oshkosh, driving a 1967 Ford allegedly stolen in Kansas late last week.

McCline Charged With Murder

Findings of an autopsy performed on the body of Souhail Sharif who died Sunday after a Friday night assault resulted in the late Monday filing of second-degree murder charges against George E. McCline instead of manslaughter charges as previously announced.

Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas told The Star earlier that manslaughter charges would be filed in connection with Mr. Sharif's death because at that time it was not believed that there was any intent to kill involved in the assault.

However, Chief Deputy Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners said Monday that the autopsy report showed "material variation to what we had originally attributed death."

He said according to the autopsy, Mr. Sharif died as a result of a puncture wound to the head which penetrated into the brain.

Earlier, it was believed that the 25-year-old musician from Vancouver, B.C., Canada, died Sunday as a result of head injuries in an assault Friday in the hallway of an apartment building at 435 So. 12th.

Preliminary hearing was set March 8 for McCline, who appeared in court with Lincoln attorney Herbert Friedman.

After considerably discussion on the amount of bond, Lancaster County Judge Jeffrey Cheuvront set bond on the defendant at $20,000.

Lahners had asked for a $30,000 bond noting that McCline had been convicted of two previous felonies and is currently on parole from the Nebraska State Penitentiary.

However, Friedman argued that the bond premium on a $30,000 bond would be "way out of reach" and asked that the bond be set at $10,000 since the purpose of bond is merely to insure the appearance of a defendant.

Judge Cheuvront, in setting the bond at $20,000, said that he agreed that the purpose of a bond was not to punish someone but to guarantee appearance but noted that it is difficult to know where to "draw the line."

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
